

Newspaper Laws.
We call the special attention of Postmasters and subscribers to the following special laws:
1. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole account whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.
2. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not is responsible for the pay.
3. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

THE PROPER TREATMENT.
Elmore—It is always easy to give good advice.
Harlan—Not always. Some hot-headed people occasionally kick an adviser.

HOUSEHOLD.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.
Dry water-soaked shoes carefully, then rub them with vaseline, sweet oil or kerosene, and the leather will be soft and pliable again.
Small brushes are useful in cleaning potatoes and other vegetables before paring them. Tooth brushes that have been discarded for toilet purposes, may be used for cleaning lamp burners, silverware or anything of that kind. Whisk brooms will look better and last better for an occasional cleaning. Dip them up and down in a pail of clean, warm suds, then rinse in clear water, and hang them up to dry.
If you wish to stain your kitchen or dining room floor a dark brown, get one-fourth of an ounce of permanganate of potash, add it to a quart of water, and apply quickly to the dry floor, using an old paint brush. Repeat the process if not dark enough. When dry, oil with linseed oil or beeswax and turpentine. This is one of the most durable colors known, and very cheap.
If you have white garments that are mildewed, soak the places in butter-milk, and lay it on the grass in the sunshine to dry. If it is not removed at first, a second or third application will make it white again.
It often becomes necessary to renovate cashmere and other goods before making it over, and I will tell you how I cleaned a black cashmere skirt that was needed to wear with shirt waists this summer. First, I took it all apart and brushed every piece, to remove the lint and dust that had gathered along the seams on the wrong side of the goods. Half a tubful of soft water was heated, and the goods washed in it, using all the ivory soap necessary to get it clean. Two waters would be needed if the goods were very dirty. After rinsing it was hung up until about half dry, rolled up tightly and allowed to remain half an hour, then ironed on the wrong side. One who has never tried it would be surprised to see how now the goods look. Any woolsen goods, such as baby's flannels, or dress materials may be washed in this way without fading or shrinking.
To remove tar from cotton clothing, rub the spots with lard and let it stand several hours. Then wash with hot water and soap.
A kitchen table covered with zinc is a great labor-saver. It is easily cleaned and is not injured by cutting meat or vegetables, but it will last a lifetime, and conserving the labor it saves, the cost is an insignificant matter.

ON FRIGHTENING CHILDREN.
People who have the care of little children vary in opinion as to the best means of punishing them, for even the best of little people need correction at times.
A mother is, without doubt, the person to whom this duty belongs, and it is her paramount duty to see that it is never deputed to any one who will frighten the child. Nurses who are properly enough forbidden to administer corporal punishment, are very apt to fall back on some such methods if not carefully warned against them and due supervision exercised to see that these admonitions are not neglected.
It is true, perhaps, that the imaginary person who was supposed to be always coming after naughty children—the bogeyman, in fact, of our own childish days—is a being of the part. But he has many relations closely resembling him, and so important a matter mothers ought to be watchful.
If a child is constitutionally nervous, it is no use to think that it can be made different by force. Argument, too, in many cases, only intensifies the nervousness which children often feel if left alone in the dark, and gives definite expression to fears which are purely imaginary. Many people argue that a child who is afraid to be left alone, or to go into a dark room, ought to be made to do either of these things in order to find out that no harm will come to him. Now, children are seldom really afraid unless they have been made so, and it is a curious fact that the most timid children shrink from disclosing his fears to any one.
In such a case, some one has certainly warned him that worse things will happen if he dares to disclose the reason of his alarm. Very often this is the simplest thing which has been made to appear so terrible under certain conditions.

SOME GOOD RECIPES.
Roast Beef Heart.—Wash the heart well and cut off the fat at top, then let it lie in salt and water while you prepare some veal stuffing. For the stuffing use two tablespoonfuls of breadcrumbs, one of chopped parsley, one of finely-minced suet, a little lemon rind, a pinch of pepper and salt, and enough milk to bind. Fill the holes of the heart tightly with the stuffing, and cover over with a piece of greased paper. Put about an ounce of dripping into an iron saucepan, and when it is melted and thoroughly hot, put in the heart. Put on the lid, and let it remain for about ten minutes, and then lift the lid and turn the heart. Keep covered for other ten minutes and turn again, and so on till it is browned all over. Let simmer gently for three quarters of an hour, then lift it on to a hot dish. Pour away the fat, put in a teaspoonful of salt to brown, then pour in gradually half a pint of water and a spoonful of ketchup with pepper and salt to taste. Stir till boiling and pour over the heart.
This Way of Boiling Peas should have a trial from all our readers. When the pods are fresh wash them well after the peas are removed, and boil closely covered for ten minutes. Strain off the husks, return the liquor to the saucepan, and when it boils, add the peas. The secret of having peas a really good color is to let them boil fast.
Calf's Brain Patties are a decided delicacy, and will prove a good supper dish. Take some calf's brains which have been boiled, add a hard-boiled egg, chopped small. Flavor with a little chopped parsley, a suspension of lemon peel, a small pinch of powdered mace, pepper and salt. Moisten with cream or a little white sauce. Make some puff paste, line half a dozen patty tins with it, and fill with the mixture, moisten the eggs with water, and cover with paste. Brush the patties over with the yolk of an egg, and bake in a quick oven for ten or fifteen minutes. These patties can be made equally well of cold chicken and a little chopped ham.

THE CLOSET DOOR.
It is the usual thing to have one or more closets for clothing opening into each bedroom. Often these are in inner walls, that is, do not have a window opening out of doors, and are consequently dark, unventilated pockets. This is exceedingly objectionable for closets anywhere, and especially so for closets opening into a bedroom. An outer garment which has been worn for several days—the frock of the woman, the coat and trousers of the man,—is taken off and hung up in this dark, unventilated box of a place. The garments are more or less impregnated, even with the most cleanly people, with effete matter which is the function of the skin to remove from the body. These are of organic character and atmospheric, and the closets already exist care at least may be taken to thoroughly air all clothing before placing it in the closet, and the closet door being aired and sunned, as it would be for several hours each morning.

BOAT BUILT LIKE A FISH.
Narrow and Deep and Turtle-Backed and Named.
A craft built very much upon the lines of a mackerel, was hauled out of a shed of the Morgan Iron Works at the foot of East Ninth street, New York, on Thursday afternoon and taken toward the East River preparatory to launching. The designer of the boat is Capt. Carl Flindt. He would tell nothing about her, but it is understood that he believes she is going to eclipse every marine speed record that he designed her to do that. Fifty to sixty miles an hour is said to be the speed which she is expected to make. She is apparently not nearly so wide as she is deep. She is 67 feet long overall and her water line length will apparently be about her full length. Her displacement will be small, for she appears to be not more than five feet thick at the widest, and six feet deep in the middle of the keel. She is cut away forward one-third of her length, and her keel also slopes up aft a foot or more. Her moulded body does not reach aft of the stern post, but there is an overhang of six feet or more aft of this, like the main part of a fish's tail, and the rudder post comes down through this making the rudder form the likeness of the lower part of a fish's tail. The rudder post and the screw shaft, aft of the screw, join in a bearing of the whole of the moulded form of the boat seems designed to get under water, and her sharp nose will probably project above in calm weather more than a foot.
From her nose at her deck is a turtle back, almost as sharp in section as the body of the boat, and just beyond the end of the cutaway part, where a dorsal fin would be on a fish, is a pilot house which resembles in size and shape just such a fin. From there the turtle back slopes aft and ends at nothing but the lower tail. The vessel's hull is planked with wood and is covered up by the water line. The turtle back and the pilot house are of light wood, and are canvas covered. The whole can learn to go as much under water as over it, and pilot house and turtle back close up tightly and are provided with bulwarks and other small windows.
The screw is said to contain the secret of Capt. Flindt's hopes. It was covered with canvas, on Thursday, and that could be told only by its appearance was that it had two blades, and these are set at a very acute angle to the line of the screw. Her horse power, the character of her engines and boilers, or whether she is to be driven by steam, gasoline, a Keely motor, or moonshine are all untold, although workmen said she was to be propelled by a gasoline engine.

FOREIGN DEVILS.
A Chinese Writer Describes the Atrocities of Civilization.
When I was a youngster, my mother used to keep me quiet by threatening to give me to the yang king, writes Chang Wu in North China Herald. I thought then they were real devils, mind you. And what wonder, with their outlandish clothes, and big hands and feet, hairy faces, and great goggling blue eyes, enough to scare any child into fits! You often hear people say they are half blind, with those staring blue eyes; although they have the power of seeing into the hills and laying bare the treasures of the earth. But let me tell you that is all nonsense. They can see just as sharp as you or I.

I don't know. No one ever stays that long.

WITHOUT A PEER—WORKS MIRACLES.
Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is without a peer. This great remedy relieves instantly the most aggravated and distressing forms of heart disease. It is the surest and quickest acting formula for heart trouble known to medical science, and thousands of times has the heart of the grim destroyer been stayed by its use. If there is palpitation, shortness of breath, pain in left side, smothering sensations, don't delay, or you may be counted in the long list of those who have gone over to the great majority, because the best remedy in the world today was not promptly used.

SOME BICYCLE TRICKS.

INTERESTING FEATS PERFORMED ON THE WHEEL.
Wheelman Who Indulge in Competitions Requiring Nerve and Skill—What May Be Seen at London Bicycle Gymnasium.
A curious sort of affair has been brought into existence in London called the bicycle gymnasium. Although not exactly what its name implies, it furnishes an opportunity for the wheelman to perform all sorts of curious tricks, just as the regulation gymnasium gives corresponding opportunity to the athlete. In this London bicycle gymnasium entries have to be made by those desirous of joining just as in a race, and these entries close at least four days before the gymnasium exhibition takes place. The course is arranged so that as many spectators can witness the proceedings as possible, and this in comfort. The programme of events is as curious as the idea itself. For instance, there is the egg and spoon race; in which one wheelman is an egg, and the spoon tries the rider first falling after his opponent has touched him being considered the loser. The Turk's head is an event always provocative of interest and amusement, and is easily arranged. A cocoon in the husk is balanced upon a large wax candle, about four inches in length, which the rider must cut through, making an excellent substitute for more elaborate representation. Still another event is called slicing lemons, and consists of one rider sailing six other cyclists who travel side by side. The lone rider must force his way through the other competitors, and this is one of the most difficult feats on the programme, and but few riders have thus far succeeded in accomplishing it.
A Jack and Jill race is generally great fun. The riders, entering in pairs, start hand in hand for a point at which a pail of water has been placed. One of them dismounts and takes this up, and at a point marked by a chalk line, half the way home, the bucket has to be taken, while still riding, by the other competitor. In cases where the course is fairly wide one, several pairs start at one, the winners being those who accomplish the feat in the shortest time and who spill the least quantity of water. Such are some of the features of the exhibitions given in the gymnasium. At the times when these exhibitions are not taking place, the gymnasium is used as a track, and is a fairly wide space, fitted in every possible way for the convenience and pleasure of the cyclists, is utilized for practice.

WHERE LONDON GOES ON HOLIDAYS.

are constantly in attendance, not to teach persons to ride in ordinary fashion, but to help them to become experts in the most advanced of the wheel. It is argued by the wheelmen who have organized this gymnasium that when a cyclist really puts his time to it he can learn to perform almost as many antics with the bicycle as if his machine of steel were really of flesh and blood.

KIDNEY GRIND.
South America Kidney Cure the only specific for Kidney Disease—A liquid and solvent—never fails. Medical Science has proved beyond a doubt that the solid particles which pass through the kidneys in the ordinary course of circulation—and which in time so grind and wear these organs that they become diseased and will not perform the functions for which they were created—require a solvent to dissolve and eradicate from the system these foreign substances, and the great South American Kidney Cure has proven to be the best and most scientific remedy for such, and the testimony of thousands who have been cured by it, when pill doses have failed is the best demonstration of the fact that a solvent must be administered. If in despair use this remedy.

South American Nerve.
The Great Health Restorer of the Century.
Sickness Cannot Cope With It.
Has Cured the Worst Cases on Record.
Cures at the Nerve Centres and Thus Cures Permanently.
A Wonderful Specific in All Cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Nervousness and General Debility.
Has No Equal as a Spring Medicine.
There is a great deal of uncertainty in the methods adopted to remove disease. Doctors are not free from this kind of thing themselves. The poor patient has to put up with a good deal of experimenting. The discoverer of South American Nerve takes too serious a view of life to play pranks of this kind. He does not think that these human bodies of ours should be fooled with. He has recognized that they are subject to disease, but by scientific methods, he has learned that just as the watch is to be put in perfect repair only when the exhausted vital forces that have led to this tired, don't-care, played-out, miserable condition. No one can take a bottle without disease, quickly giving way to astounding health.
The moral is plain, simple and readily understood. If you would get rid of indigestion, if you would get rid of nervousness, if you would get rid of all stomach troubles—the nerve centres.
