KEY OF THE WEST INDIES.

HAVANA CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH IN THE YEAR 1762.

Story of the Siege and Capture More Than a Hundred Years Ago—An Interesting Bit of History.

In 1762, soon after the declaration of war between England and Spain the British Government despatched an expedition against Havana. The land forces were commanded by Lord Albemarle, William Anne Keppel, the victor of Culloden and the fleet by Admiral Sir George Pocock, who had recently returned from a brilliant campaign in the East Indies. The expedition, as organized, was to consist of 16,000 men, of which Lord Albemarle carried with him 4,000 British regulars. Eight thousand were in the West Indies under Gen. Monckton, and 4,000 from the continent of North America. Of these 2,000 were to be British regulars and 2,000 provincial troops, says the New York Sun.

The English fleet arrived off Havana on June 6. Here Pocock divided his fleet. With the larger division he sailed down the coast past Havana. On the next day he manned his boats and made preparations apparently for landing at a point about four miles west of Havana. But this was a mere feint to distract the attention of the Spanish while the actual landing was made by the other division, about six miles east of Havana. Here the army was landed in three divisions.

ACCOUNT OF THE LANDING.

Commodore Keppel gives this account of the landing:—"At an appointed signal the flat-bottomed boats containing the troops repaired to their respective rendezvous under the sterns of the line of battleships, whose captains conducted them to the shore. While the embarkation was going on the enemy made a show of resistance from a breastwork which they had thrown up. Upon this Commodore Keppel directed the Mercury and Bonetta to pour their fire into them, and they were soon put to flight. A more considerable body of men making their appearance, he ordered Capt. Hervey to run in and batter a fort situated at the mouth of the Boca Nao, which in the course of an hour he completely silenced, and the army landed without further molestation."

He thus describes the defences of Havana at that time:—"The harbour of Havana, which is spacious enough to contain a hundred sail of the line, is defended by two strong forts. The principal of these, the Morro, built upon a narrow point of land, is inaccessible from the sea. To the east it is fortified by several works and by a deep ditch half of which is cut out of the solid rock. On the opposite entrance of the harbour stands Fort de la Punta; further in and on a level with the water is a strong battery mounting twelve guns, called 'The Twelve Apostles,' and higher up a work opposite the Point Gate called 'The Shepherds Battery.' Above these are the Cavannos, a chain of hills which range from the Morro to the plains of Guanacos. A chain of bastions and other works defend the town to the west."

BUILDING BATTERIES.

The landing having been successfully accomplished, the division of the army under Major-General Keppel, marched to the west to invest the Morro Castle and the fortifications on that side of the harbour. Gen. Howe's division was assigned to the investment of the Castle del Punta, with Gen. Elliott, with the centre division cut off the city from all communications with the interior of the islands.

The British commanders at once commenced the erection of batteries at the most advantageous points on the line of investment. This was accomplished under great difficulties. The troops were unaccustomed to the heat of a Cuban summer, and water was scarce and very bad, there was great want of fresh provisions, and the army soon began to show signs of epidemic disease. At one time there were 5,000 soldiers and 3,000 men on the sick list.

Fortunately, Albemarle had brought with him from Martinique about 1,500 negroes and these performed the greater part of the work of throwing up breastworks and erecting batteries. In spite of all obstacles it was pushed on as rapidly as possible, and on June 30 the batteries bearing on the Morro were completed, and the next morning a tremendous cannonade was opened upon the Spanish fort.

ATTACKING THE FORT.

Admiral Pocock, anxious to co-operate with the land forces, directed Commodore Keppel to send a part of his fleet to bombard the Morro on the sea side, hoping thus to divide the attention of the enemy and prevent the concentration of his fire upon the batteries. It was a dangerous undertaking, Keppel says:—"The ships proceeded to their stations. Capt. Campbell, in the Sterling Castle, was ordered to lead, but his courage failed him. The three other ships, the Dragon, Marlborough and Cambridge anchored close in with the shore and laid their broadsides against the fort. For six hours they kept up an unintermitting fire. As it was evident that the fire of these ships had little effect on the Morro, while its fire was playing havoc with them, Commodore Keppel ordered their withdrawal. They were in bad condition and had to be retired for repairs.

On July 9 the English batteries again opened on the Morro, and the next week showed encouraging results. On the 16th the English fire had increased, while the Morro could only reply with two guns. The British commanders now determined that it was time to prepare for an assault upon the works. The Morro was defended by a ditch 30 feet deep and 40 feet wide, cut through the solid rock, except in one place, where a narrow ledge had been left across the ditch to shut out the water from the sea. Along this ledge only one man could pass at a time, but on July 18, the English sappers and miners made a dash across it and effected a lodgment in the wall of the fortress.

THE GALLANT VELASCO.

The defence of the Morro had been committed to Don Luis Velasco, a gallant naval captain, who proved himself worthy of the trust. Appreciating the necessity of driving the British miners from their position, Velasco sallied out with 1500 men, in three divisions, but was promptly met and repulsed with heavy loss. In this affair the battalion of Royal Americans who had just arrived, distinguished itself greatly. Under the immediate command of Gen. Keppel, who led it in person, it defeated one of the Spanish columns, driving them into the river, where 150 Spaniards were drowned.

THE BRITISH TRIUMPH.

The Spanish land and sea forces available for the defence of the city amounted to about 30,000 men. They had a fleet in the harbour of Havana of twelve line-of-battle ships, but instead of sailing out and giving battle to the English ships, or making an attempt to escape, they remained there, to be caught like rats in a hole. Three of the battleships were sunk to block the entrance to the harbour; the other nine were surrendered to the British, who also burned two more upon the stocks.

The triumph was one of the most complete ever achieved by British arms. The value of captured property amounted to $14,000,000. Philip II had given to Havana a coat of arms, in which was blazoned a gold key, to signify that it was "the key of the West Indies." England now held that key, and had been wise who would have kept it. But, a few months after its surrender, peace was declared, and England gave up Havana for Florida. She might have held Havana, and with it she would have held the main gate to the Gulf of Mexico and the isthmus.

Suffering Vanquished.

A NOVA SCOTIAN FARMER TELLS HOW HE REGAINED HEALTH.

Had Suffered From Acute Rheumatism and General Debility—Scurcely Able to Do the Lightest Work.

From the Acadien, Wolfville, N.S.

One of the most prosperous and intelligent farmers of the village of Greenwich, N.S., is Mr. Edward Manning. Anyone intimate with Mr. Manning knows him as a man of strong integrity and veracity, so that every confidence can be placed in the information which he gave a reporter of the Acadien, for publication the other day. During a very pleasant interview he gave the following statements of his severe suffering and recovery:—"Two years ago last September," said Mr. Manning, "I was taken with an acute attack of rheumatism. I had not been feeling well for some time previous to that date, having been troubled with sleeplessness and general debility. My constitution seemed completely run down. Beginning in the small of my back the pain soon passed into my hip, where it remained without intermission, and I became a terrible sufferer. All my work and it was scarcely able to do any work at all. I was only with the hobble of suffering that I managed to do to the barn each day to do my chores. I appealed to medical men for help but they failed to bring any relief. At last I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and with their use came complete and lasting cure. I had not used quite three boxes when I began to feel decidedly better. I continued using them until twelve boxes had been consumed, when my complete recovery warranted me in discontinuing their use. I have never felt better than since that time. My health seems to have improved in every way. During the past summer I worked very hard but have felt no bad effects. The gratitude I feel to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, none but those who have suffered as I have and been cured, can appreciate. An analysis shows that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of a grippé, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic cystitis, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Sold by all dealers or sent postpaid at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 by the R.D. Williams Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.

JEALOUSY VS. HAPPINESS.

This is the question that bothers many a wife. And we think, is the question that causes more unhappy differences than any other. To be loved devotedly is the ambition of every woman, but to have that love take the form of exacting suspicion, or a sort of affectionate jailership, is not always desirable.

Opinions galore are given on this topic and we can only judge from the lives that come closest to us, in fact the lives that are lived under our observation.

To begin with, there is a couple, happy as two young lovers, the husband, however, so insensibly jealous of his wife that he has broken off even her womanly friendships. If she were to walk as far as the gate with another gentleman a tragedy would be the almost certain result. Yet, as we said before, they are both serenely happy. Would they be so, if circumstances brought about a new existence and set up new conditions? Will the wife always be satisfied with this state of affairs? Let us hope so, for it would be a pity to spoil their illusions.

MIXED FARMING BEST.

With favorable weather, wise management and a good market, the specialty farmer sometimes makes a grand showing. However, mixed husbandry is safer, and in the long run will usually give best results. Where a variety of domestic animals are kept, Page fence will be found not only a luxury, but almost a necessity. Farm styles at from 45 to 65 cents per rod.
