3 Laurier political scientists

discuss constitution wednesday

Three political scientists at Wilfrid Laurier University, all students of the unfolding drama over bringing Canada's constitution home, will discuss the latest developments Wednesday night.

They will take part in a constitution television special, sponsored by the university, on Grand River Cable channel 4 at 10 p.m. A phone-in segment for viewers will be part of the hour-long program.

Discussing this week's Supreme Court decision on the constitution will be Professors Rod Preece, Barry Kay and John Redekop. Moderator will be the university's information director Richard K. Taylor.

The special program marks the first of a new series, titled In Touch with U, which will be aired monthly over the community television channel during the

"With this new program we hope to bring the university into closer communication with the community and to share insights, ideas and opinions," Mr. Taylor said. "We plan to keep the show interesting and entertaining."
