

102-1982
Richard K. Taylor
Nov. 9, 1982

SPECIAL TO HENRY KOCH

It's a family affair
at Laurier convocation

Janet Heimpel, a member of the registrar's office at Wilfrid Laurier University, received her bachelor of arts degree at the recent convocation after 10 years of part-time studies. But that's not the whole story.

Her daughter, Michelle Anne, graduated at the same ceremony with an honors business administration degree. Nor is that all. Michelle Anne's husband, Robert Way, was on stage, too--also receiving an honors business administration degree.

Michelle Anne, a graduate of St. Mary's High School entered Laurier at the end of Grade 12 on the special program for top high school achievers. Both she and her husband were co-op students (alternating campus and work terms).

Randy is with Coopers and Lybrand, chartered accountants and Michelle Anne is a group underwriter at Mutual Life Assurance Company.