

News Release, August 23, 1960.

Waterloo University College has announced seven appointments to its faculty, as reported today by the Dean, Dr. Lloyd R. Schaus. Appointed to head up the Classics department is Dr. William E. Gwatkin, Jr., who has been chairman of the Classics department for many years at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri. He will serve as Professor at the rank of Associate Professor. Assisting him in the department is Mr. Edward J. Barnes, native of Toronto, as Lecturer.

Chairman of the Psychology department is Mr. Donald F. Morgenson, who has recently completed his internship requirements at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minnesota. He will be assisted by Miss Mary Kay Lane of St. Thomas as Lecturer.

Dr. Wilhelm Brauns, a specialist in old and middle high German, comes from Berlin, Germany, to serve as Lecturer in the German department, now headed by Professor Kurt Nabert.

Dr. Bruce N. Honeyford, who has been at University College, University of Toronto, since 1952, will come to Waterloo University College as Assistant Professor in the English department, specializing in Shakespeare and Dramatic Literature.

Mr. Chadwick Day will serve as Lecturer and supervise the courses in Geology now offered by Waterloo University College. He is an Honors graduate in Geology from the University of Western Ontario.

Professor Gwatkin began his teaching career in Canada at McMaster University from 1926-28, when it was located in Toronto. A graduate of William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., A.B. 1921, he received his A.M. from Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, in 1923 and carried on studies for his doctorate at the University of Chicago and Princeton University, receiving his Ph.D. degree from the latter in 1930. He also obtained an LL.B. in Law from the University of Missouri in 1948. This evidently interested his oldest son, William III, who graduated LL.B. from Harvard in 1957. His other son, Davidson, is a student at Haverford College, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Gwatkin taught the Classical Languages and Archaeology at the University of Missouri from 1928 to the present, serving consecutively as Assistant Professor, Associate and full Professor. In 1955 he was Director of the Summer Session of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece, and served as Annual Professor there the following year while on sabbatical leave from the University of Missouri. During World War II he served as an instructor in the Air Corps Program and the Army Military Governmental Program.

Mr. Gwatkin, who speaks French, German, Italian and Modern Greek, has travelled periodically through Western Europe, Italy and Greece. Under the auspices of the University of Missouri studies, he published the book "Cappadocia as a Roman Procuratorial Province." He has also contributed articles on various classical subjects, such as "The Classics Teacher in a General Humanities Course" for School and Society, and "Reflection upon the Battle of Pharsalus" for Transactions of the American Philological Association. He has been active in the Classical Association of the Middle West and South and served as president during its Jubilee year, 1952-53. He belongs to the American Philological Association, and is chairman of the Committee on the Educational Guidance Pamphlet "What About Latin?"; is a member of the Managing Committee of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens (the Executive Committee, 1956-60); and is a member of the advisory committee to the School of Classical Studies of the American Academy at Rome. Dr. Gwatkins is president of the Missouri chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, having been elected to the Honor Society while at Indiana University.

Mr. Barnes, Lecturer in the Classics, is a graduate in Honors Classics from the University of Toronto, and this year received his M.A. in Classics from Toronto.

Mr. Morgenson is a graduate of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minnesota, B.A. 1950. He received his M.S. from Pennsylvania State University in 1952 and is now completing his work towards the Ph.D. at the same university. In addition to his internship at the Mayo Clinic, Professor Morgenson has served as Graduate and Research Assistant and Counselor in the Division of Counseling at Penn State, University Park. From 1952-54 he was a Sergeant in the Army, serving in Korea. During his college years Mr. Morgenson was active athletically in track and captain of the swimming team, sang in the St. Olaf Chapel Choir and participated in the dramatic group, Campus Players.

Miss Mary Lane, Lecturer in Psychology, whose father is an Anglican rector, graduated in Honors Psychology from the University of Western Ontario. She obtained her M.A. from the same institution this year.

Dr. Brauns is a graduate of the University of Berlin, 1926, where he majored in Germanic Language and Literature (including old Norse philology) and minored in English and Latin. His Ph.D. thesis at Berlin in 1934 was a dissertation on Hermann von Sachsenheim, 15th century literary figure of south-west Germany. He is completing at present a definitive work (1,000 pages) to appear with a complete 'Sachsenheim Edition.' He has also written articles concerning the Grimm brothers for a German Encyclopedia. Mr. Brauns fled from East Berlin to West Berlin in the fall of 1958. He hopes to make a study of the location of the various language strains in Ontario and relate them to historical developments. He will lecture in the German Department.

Dr. Honyford, Assistant Professor in English, received all his education at the University of Toronto, including O. C. E. in 1939. He served in the Canadian Intelligence Corps of the Army from 1942-45. Before coming to the University to teach in 1952, he was at Humberstone Collegiate, Toronto. His doctoral thesis, 1952, was entitled "Problems of Good and Evil in Jacobean Tragedy." In 1953 he received a combined appointment with both the University College and the Division of University Extension, as Assistant Director.
