Music at Noon on Sept. 11

leads off WLU music series

The return of fall opens a new concert season for the music faculty at Wilfrid Laurier University.

The free Music at Noon series, held every Thursday, begins Sept. 11 in the Theatre Auditorium, University Ave., with music by Susan Prior, baroque flute, and Boyd McDonald, fortepiano.

Entrance to the Theatre Auditorium, during construction for the new Cultural Centre which will incorporate it, will be through doors at the side, opening on the quadrangle.

Dr. Gordon Greene, dean of music, asked for the public's understanding during the 18-month construction period, when conditions in and around the Theatre Auditorium will be less than ideal.

Two Music at Noon concerts, music for the organ, will be held in the Keffer chapel of Waterloo Lutheran Seminary, which houses the university's tracker instrument.
