Children use senses of touch and smell in play at Laurier

Children can journey through an imaginary labyrinth, smell ancient perfumes, and touch age-old pottery when Wilfrid Laurier University presents "Song of the Labyrinth."

Part of a seven-day archeology and ancient civilizations festival, the play takes children on a simulated expedition.

It's free, and it takes place at 2 p.m. on January 20 in the Paul Martin Centre.

For more information, call 884-1970 ext. 4882.
