Where are the jobs? WLU alumni to discuss career strategies

Jobs, jobs, where are the jobs? What should I study? What occupations will be in demand in the future? How do I get from here to there?

Some of the answers to those and other questions will be heard on Tuesday, January 9, when Laurier's School of Business and Economics presents ASCI Night: Alumni Strategies for Career Impact.

The 90-minute careerfest, sponsored by London Life, is intended to provide information on a variety of career opportunities from the perspective of recent Laurier graduates. They will be prepared to discuss what courses should be taken, how to market yourself for that all-important first job, and how to get more information on specific careers.

Following the keynote address from Roger Lillyman, a 1965 Honors Economics graduate who is currently senior vice-president (retirement products) with London Life, participants will break up into groups to hear other Laurier graduates talk about: accounting and management systems; marketing, sales and international consulting; general management and operations; or finance, insurance and investments.

ASCI Night - which also kicks off the year-long celebration of the School of Business and Economics' 30th anniversary - is open to all WLU students, interested alumni, and the general public. Admission is free, no tickets are required, and complimentary food will be served.

ASCI Night will take place in Room P1025/27 of the Peters Building at WLU. It runs from 5:30 to 7 p.m.
