worse it will take place on the 9th of September, 1908.

I was sorry to hear that the peach crop was well nigh put out of commission by the snow and cold, but hope the damage will not be as bad as was first supposed. We have been having rather cold weather lately. It has frozen every morning this week and we have had several little snows. In Laex it is snowing now and has been doing so nearly all day, but it is not the kind of snow that accumulates very fast. The ground furnishes a good bottom though for it now, as it has not thawed all day to-day. Everything looks very wintry yet. Not a single green leaf or blade has appeared. The ice, however, has about all gone out of the lake, which is a good sign that spring and summer are close at hand. Last Sunday I filled my regular appointments in Ohio and Pleasant River. The first part of the day was bright and pleasant, though somewhat cold. In the afternoon before service was out it began to rain and as it was cold and the roads desperately muddy and the night dark, I announced that there would be no service in the evening. It rained on till bed-time and before morning turned to snow. I got home Monday about noon and made some short trips in the afternoon in the interest of my Easter practice and Sunday school. Monday night I was up to see Bonnie till about half past ten. I then came home and went to bed, from which I was aroused about half past twelve to go see a sick woman in Stamford. It was eight miles over there and I arrived at about two o'clock. I stayed for quite a while and administered the communion and returned home in time for breakfast. I was good and tired, I can tell you, and
