WATERLOO – Wilfrid Laurier University’s Board of Governors has approved the appointment of Ray Darling as the university’s new registrar. His five-year term begins August 1.

Darling comes to Laurier from the University of Guelph, where he has served as the associate registrar, admission services for the past five years. Darling’s 15-year career at the University of Guelph included various roles in the registrar’s office, the president’s office, admissions, counselling and athletics.

"I look forward to the positive energy that Ray will bring to the registrar's office, as well as his ability to motivate staff and to adopt new technologies," said Sue Horton, Laurier’s vice-president: academic. "He will build on Glennice Snyder’s excellent work as acting registrar this past academic year."

Horton also cites Darling’s current role as vice-president of the Ontario University Registrars’ Association and his previous role as chair of the Ontario Universities Council on Admissions as beneficial to his position at Laurier.

"I am very excited about joining Laurier, an institution I have often admired from not so far away," said Darling. "I look forward to working with the team in the registrar's office supporting students, faculty and staff with the best services and systems possible."

Darling holds a bachelor of arts and a master’s degree from the University of Guelph. He was a sessional instructor in Guelph’s department of political science and served on various senate committees.
