need it. I dislike the idea of moving more than almost anything else. It is such a bother, and I am no good at packing and getting things in readiness. We wish you could come along with Peovl and see your fine grandsons. I know you would be proud of them; they are so bright and good.
Coroler is a great talker these days and knows both the English and the German for a good many things and Herman is picking up tricks already and plays with hands and dress and cross like a dog.

When I was in Bridgewater some time ago Dr.
McMekin asked to be remembered to Herbert and said I should ask him if he still remembered about the lobsters. We had one for supper a few days ago. We get plenty of fresh fish here, also clams and scallops which latter I like best of all.
Well, I guess I will close as it is time all honest folks were in bed. With love to you all,

I am
