buy him a pair. When we got there he didn't wait for me to go in the house but went in while I was putting the horse up, and when I came in he said yes, they have them and took me around and showed me a bunch of suspenders of the proper size. I bought him a pair and put them on and I tell you he was "some proud." Marion walks alone some now. She can walk half way across the room without falling and I think she would walk all the time if she had suitable shoes. She still wears the soft bottomed ones and they are inclined to turn over. I am going to get her a pair of shoes to-morrow. In fact I got some to-day, but they were too large for her. Herman has a suit like Corolus's too and looks like a brownie in it. He is so fat and has such a big paunch, or "drum-tummy." We have only a small crowd on hand just now. Two of the girls went to Mahone Bay to have some clothes made and one boy went Saturday on a visit to his sisters. This leaves us with only seven at present. The other girl was to have gone away to-day but the man who wanted her failed to come. She was going a month on trial with a view to adoption. The affairs of the Home are not in very good shape. I am behind over $400 on my own salary and there are several hundred dollars of other debts. I got a bill to-day of $90.50 for medical attendance during Stevens's
