Dear Mother:-

WATERLOO, ONT.

July 24, 1924.

Your most welcome letter was received a day or two ago and was much enjoyed. I was sorry to hear of Aunt Sabina's death, although it was not unexpected. When you see Uncle Cephas kindly convey to him my sincerest sympathies. The older generation is passing and if we live a few years longer we must expect and be prepared to hear of more and more of them passing on into the great beyond. The place that once knew them knowing them no more. It should be a call to us who remain to make diligent use of the period of grace which is ours to-day, but may be ours no more to-morrow. I was very much pleased to know that grandmother Little was so well and that she was able to hear again and was permitted to enjoy the ministrations of the Gospel. I often wondered how she was and am sorry that she was so deaf when I was down that I could not carry on a conversation with her. She has certainly reached a remarkable old age, and the beauty of it is that she takes it so gracefully and finds so great comfort and consolation in the blessings of religion. If you should see her while she is in a favourable condition, give her my love and assurance of my prayers. I was sorry to hear that Aunt Connie was sick again and in bed. I thought though that she looked bad enough to be in bed when I
