Dear Mother: I am at home to-day for the first time on Sunday this summer and will take advantage of the favourable situation to write you a few lines once again. I will not be at home all day, as I am to preach at Galt to-night at a Harvest Home Festival they are holding there. Next Sunday I am engaged to preach at Hespeler in the evening. So I am still doing enough preaching to keep in practice. Our summer vacation is now well-nigh over, as we begin our regular work in Seminary and College on Tuesday of this week. The prospects for attendance of students are very good. We expect to have 18 or 19 in the Seminary when they are all in. In the College they are expecting quite as many as they had lost year and perhaps a few more. So that in the whole institution we should run well over the hundred this year. We are handicapped in the Seminary by the shortage of our Professor - a shortage which may be remedied soon, but which for the present entails a doubling up of the work on the
