Centennial Lecture Series

To Be Published by University

Even though Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker was unable to deliver the fourth in the series of centennial lectures at Waterloo Lutheran University, his lecture will reach a wide audience.

The lecture series will be published by the university as a more lasting contribution to national understanding during this centennial year.

Mr. Diefenbaker was unable to give his lecture when the airplane bringing him from Ottawa could not land at Waterloo-Wellington Airport due to poor weather conditions.

His topic was The Role of Opposition in Parliamentary Democracy.

The other speakers, and their topics, were Dr. Chester A. Ronning, Canada's Changing Role in International Affairs; Hon. John W. Pickersgill, The Place of Equalization in Canadian Federalism; and Senator W. Ross Macdonald, Responsible Government in a Collectivist Age.
