YOUNG KENILWORTH AT WORK WITH HOE & RAKE

Girls and Boys Enlisted to Cultivate Garden Plots for Uncle Sam—Mrs. Bull Heads Movement.

Girls and boys of Kenilworth are wielding the hoe and the rake for Uncle Sam. It is not a social affair with them. They are in it for real, hard work. They are going to work right along until crops are ripe, harvest the produce in a businesslike way, and then hold a harvest-home celebration.

Young Kenilworth has taken up gardening in earnest. And there are none more enthusiastic than the girls and boys who have enlisted to plant, cultivate, hoe, rake, weed and harvest in two plots of ground under the direction of the Kenilworth efficiency bureau.

To Use Athletic Field.

Mrs. Charles R. Bull, chairman of the committee on community garden work, and others working with her, have obtained the privilege of using the former athletic field of the community near Sheridan Road and Kenilworth Avenue, part of the estate of the late Joseph Sears, known as the "founder of Kenilworth," and another plot near the Episcopal Church.

The sod has been broken and the work is going merrily along. Among the girls who are rapidly becoming adept in the handling of garden tools are Lucille Curtis, Elizabeth Merrill, Beatrice Pease, Dorothy Flood, Sarah Armstrong, Louise Tinsman and Florence Pease.

Members of the community garden committee working with Mrs. Bull are Mrs. William Fitch and Mrs. V. K. Spicer. It is they who have enlisted the young folks in the work.

As the vegetables are gathered they will be sold and the money will be donated for Red Cross work.

Mrs. Franklin H. Martin is president of the Kenilworth Efficiency Bureau, which was organized to assist the Government in any way possible to promote the efficiency of the conduct of the war. Mrs. V. K. Spicer is vice-president and Mrs. Dorothy Sears is secretary.

MERE WASTE OF BREATH

How old Chief Tonasket of the Okanogan Indians of Washington worked until he was literally blue in the face, trying to blow out the electric lights in a Spokane hotel, is told by the Spokane Chronicle.

The aged chief suffered greatly with his eyes and under the care of an Indian agent was brought to Spokane in 1887 for treatment. He was "put up" at a hotel. Along in the evening he appeared in the office all out of breath and with perspiration streaming down his aged face.

Using a combination of Okanogan, Chinook and sign language, he managed to acquaint the clerk with his trouble. The clerk accompanied the Indian to his room and turned off the light.

The telephone also proved a "goat getter" for Tonasket. Indian Agent Gwydir persuaded him to try it. An acquaintance of the chief was let in on the scheme. When the old red heard his friend's voice coming out of the wall he dropped the receiver with a yell.

"Hy-ue ecu-toch, kultus wa-wa!" he shouted. This translated means: "Plenty bad spirits, make plenty bad talk."

SIMPLIFIED ADDRESSES EXPEDITES LONDON MAIL

New Method of District Numbering Insures More Rapid Delivery of Letters in English Metropolis.

The following communication from the Postmaster General in Washington will probably be of interest to many readers of this newspaper having occasion to write to friends or relatives in the City of London:

"Heretofore it has been the general rule to include in the address of correspondence for delivery in the City of London, England, the initials N. W. (Northwest), W. (West), N. (North), S. W. (Southwest), S. E. (Southeast), E. (East), E. C. (East Central) or W. C. (West Central).

"This department is now advised that the British Postmaster General has supplied to all householders in the City of London a list of the principal streets showing, in each case, the initials of the postal district, as indicated above, and the number of the office of delivery for each street mentioned; and that in addition to the foregoing initials indicating the section of the city, correspondence for delivery in London, should, in the future, bear in the address also the number indicating the proper office of delivery. Thus N. W. 1 will indicate the area served from the Northwestern District Office, while N. W. 3 the area served from Hempstead, etc.

"It is stated, that if the correct number, as well as the district initials of the address are placed upon a letter, it can easily and accurately be sorted to the proper office, and will be expedited in delivery. It is stated also that as a rule business houses in London are now printing the number of their office of delivery in addition to the other indications, and that it is of considerable importance that American correspondents, as far as possible, place these numbers, in addition to the initials indicated above, on all mail matter destined for delivery in the City of London."
