TOWN IMPROVEMENT ORGANIZATION

Many societies become discouraged by the lack of legal support for their projects. They find that "Every Man's house is his castle," idea runs through all our institutions.

But law and public sentiment on this question are growing. Formerly you could not interfere with menaces to public health. Now the law is very clear on the point that a man may not maintain a nuisance dangerous to the physical well being of the community.

A similar growth is taking place in protecting the physical appearance of communities. The Illinois Supreme Court recently rendered a notable decision supporting the right of neighbors to rule out billboards from certain districts.

If the law in such matters is still indefinite, a great deal can be done by cultivation of public sentiment. If a man maintains an eyesore, let the improvement society not be fearful of criticising it.

If a man puts up an ugly building, it will do him a lot of good to find that public sentiment condemns it. If a person allows his buildings to go unpainted, a few tactful hints dropped by some active improvement society committee will have its effect.

The efficiency of the volunteer system of raising an army is proved by the great number of men who volunteer to let George do it.

The exhaustion of cold storage products indicates that the country must take a long and affectionate farewell of those 1907 eggs on which it has so long subsisted.

THE LAND OF MY THREE DAUGHTERS

By Lee Wilson Dodd of the Vigilantes.

I have one son and three daughters. They will be part of the America that will exist when I am dead. They are what I have given to that America of the near future.

I have three brothers and four sisters and a wife and four children. Not one of us four brothers has had military training. I have never fired a gun larger than a 22-caliber target rifle. In case of war—sudden war—we would be about as able to do our share in protecting our sisters and wives and children and property and rights as a pink eyed white rabbit would be able to protect its brood against a fox.

I want to save my son that shame. I want him to be trained to do his part in protecting his sisters and himself, so that when any nation thinks again of insulting and abusing America it will see an America with every able-bodied man an able soldier.

Confidence is expressed by the German people that if they agonize and fight and starve for a couple of years longer, they may be able to prevent a genuine right of suffrage from being given them.

If anyone makes a little noise, it is disturbance of the peace and a court offense, but if he is merely a food speculator and nearly starves people to death and interferes with our winning the war, it is perfectly legal.

CAUSTIC COMMENTS

Driven by fear of having to enlist, many of our bachelors are attacking the Hindenburg line of spinsters.

Some people's first thought on entering the war period is how in thunder to make some money out of it.

The United States takes pride in its strong position completely sheltered from harm by the power of the British navy.

There is much discussion of the taxation problem, and the popular conception of it is some way to make other people pay.

The fighting powers can't always kill off any women and children but ability to sink a hospital ship gives them a lot of comfort.

The theory of many gardeners of how to relieve the food shortage is to raise a lot of table relishes that will last about two weeks.

The duty of brightening the corner where you are, need not make any one feel they must cheer up the neighborhood by starting to play the piano at 5:30 a. m.
