

"WORK OR FIGHT" ORDER EXPLAINED

At the May 31 meeting of the State Council of Defense, V. A. Olander drew the Council's attention to the damaging confusion produced by the widely exploited misinterpretation of Provost Marshal General Crowder's so-called "Work or Fight" order of May 23.

The entire subject matter was referred to the State Council's committee on Law and Legislation, composed of Levy Mayer, John G. Oglesby and D. E. Shanahan with instructions to analyze the selective service law and regulations and to report thereon with a view to informing the public.

Committee Report

The committee's report was presented to the meeting of the State Council last Friday. Its conclusions are:

Serious confusion and misunderstanding have resulted from the incomplete or erroneous publicity that has been given to the additional regulations (General Crowder's order of May 23). When carefully investigated, all occasion for alarm or misunderstanding disappeared. The "work or fight" regulations of May 23 do not conflict and are not inconsistent with the original regulations of November 8, 1917.

The "work or fight" regulations do not in any way apply to those who are not registered (under the selective draft law). Only those are registered who are between the ages of 21 and 31. Therefore the command to "work or fight" applies only to those between the ages of 21 and 31, and in no way concerns or affects men above the draft age. When this is clearly understood, all occasion for criticism of alarm entirely disappears.

Does Not Effect Strikers

Registrants between the ages of 21 and 31 who are unemployed by reason of strikes are not subject to the "Work or Fight" regulations.

No existing Federal regulation and no law of the State of Illinois supports or justifies any claim or contention that men above the draft age can be compelled or are compellable to perform a certain amount of labor each day or each week.

The Law and Legislation committee's report covers fully the classification of all registrants and collateral questions. The full report has been ordered published and will be ready for distribution in a few days.

Women Are Cow Testers

Five women cow testers have recently been appointed by dairy agents of the United States Department of Agriculture, cooperating with the State agricultural colleges and the State dairymen's associations. One of these has been placed in Iowa and the other four are in Wisconsin, where the first woman cow tester in the country is now starting her second year of work. These women have received training in agricultural high schools or have taken work in dairying at short courses, and all of them have been in close touch with dairy work.

Save Clothing For War

The women of Uinta County, Utah, have saved $2,500 during the last month by remodeling hats and clothing under the supervision of the county home demonstration agent. The work is carried on at meetings to which the women bring their materials and work under the agent's supervision. Three hundred and fifty hats have been remodeled—a saving of at least $1,500—dresses have been made from coats and suits, waists from old shirts, children's clothing from women's dresses, boy's trousers from men's clothing, and boy's overcoats from men's old coats.
