Facing New Conditions

IN OUR opinion, the acid test of popular government is approaching. By a co-operation never equalled, we have helped to win the greatest war in history. This crisis has brought our people from all walks of life together for the common purpose. We must keep together. It will not do to relax our efforts now. We have problems before us second only in importance to winning the war and it will require the united effort of all our people in patriotic service if we are to win the victory of peace. We must build up a new civilization in which individual qualities will play a larger part—the rating of a man must be based upon what he is and does, and not upon whose son or grandson he chances to be, or the amount of money he has.

We face a future that calls for stout hearts, clear and vigorous manhood. The war has saddled us with a very heavy burden, and to meet it successfully demands an increase of our man-power and the necessity to maintain it at the maximum. Indeed, after orderly conditions are established the most important of America's assets is man-power. How shall this be built up? The way is open and easy—military training of youth of the land. Four year's experience has demonstrated the necessity for this and made our duty clear.

We have put through our training camps over two million young men and we know what it has done for them. It would be hard to overstate the benefits. They have learned personal hygiene, how to care for their bodies and to ward off disease; their mentality has been speeded up, their shoulders squared and broadened, their lung capacity, on the average, nearly doubled. They now stand erect, with muscles hard as nails—they are fitted and ready for any undertaking requiring courage and endurance. They have learned obedience to authority, one of the greatest lessons for our youth to learn and sorely needed by most of them; they have increased self-respect and a proper consideration for the rights of others, and have acquired a keener appreciation of the duties and obligations of citizenship.

WOMAN'S LAND ARMY WILL BE MAINTAINED

Long Term For Training of Women in Practical Farming Will Begin at Libertyville Farm in March

The Woman's Land army, the organization which gained fame last summer and taught a number of young women what real farming is, is to keep up its work this coming year, although the war is over.

Just now the Army is conducting some special short courses, a month long each, at the Libertyville farm. These courses are in dairy and creamery work, cow testing and the care of poultry. Young women who wish real practical instruction in these branches of husbandry are given thirty days of intensive training.

The full course in farm operation and the care of live stock will begin in March, and the young women who enter for that learn not only theoretical agriculture but learn to do the work—all kinds of farm work—themselves. And the "graduates" of the Woman's Land army are real farmers.

In offering this course to the women of the State, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, its chairman, says:

"The war opened many fields for women. Some are closed by the coming of peace, but agriculture remains open. Farm and dairy work are well suited to women. Federal and State activities are developing training and opportunities for women in farm life. Help produce food for your own country and Europe! Earn a good living in healthy conditions!

Young women, who wish to take the course, or who desire further information, should write to Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Room 608, 112 West Adams street, Chicago.

It is hard to bring help and comfort to the man who suffers from lacerated vanity.

The touching of elbows in the training camps of boys of all nationalities, from all parts of the country and from all walks of life, and training them without distinction, will prove to be the real melting pot that will Americanize our citizens of the future and create a common bond of sympathy and understanding that should keep our people together and to destroy, or at least minimize, class distinction. Every boy in the land will be better for such training.

This training would be very beneficial to middle-aged business and professional men, as has been demonstrated at Plattsburg and Fort Sheridan. The war department has recently authorized another such camp at Louisville, Ky., to be known as Camp Pershing. It is a part of Camp Taylor. This, we understand, opens early in January. It represents an opportunity for those at and approaching middle life that will make them better and stronger men. No other plan devised within our knowledge will do so much in a short time for health, strength and efficiency as military training. It will remake American manhood and it is as necessary for peace as it is for war.

The State Tax Rate

By Omar H. Wright
(Director of Finance.)

THE state tax rate to apply upon the 1918 property assessment, has been fixed at 75 cents. The reduction from the 90-cent rate of last year is largely made possible because of the operation of the civil administrative code, passed by the last general assembly. This law has also enabled the state to collect large additional amounts of revenue from fees, licenses, and other indirect sources.

For the first time in its history the needs of the state have been properly financed, in other words the working balance in the treasury will enable the state to meet all of its obligations until the end of the next biennium, which will expire June 30, 1919. None of the money to be received next spring from tax collections based upon the present rate, will be used until July 1, 1919, when the appropriations to be made by the next general assembly will become available.

The working balance in the treasury has enabled the state to take advantage of all cash discounts, and its centralized purchasing agency in making purchases for cash, has brought about a distinct saving in all the state activities.

The first executive budget, which will be submitted to the next Legislature by Governor Lowden, is now receiving his consideration. Increasing costs, and a comprehensive building program will doubtless call for increased appropriations. Nevertheless the present tax rate, coupled with the added indirect revenue, and the present large working balance in the treasury, will prove entirely adequate to meet all reasonable state necessities.
