GOVERNMENT WORK FOR WOUNDED MEN

In the rehabilitation work there are two great obstacles to be overcome. One of these obstacles is public indifference; the other is the reluctance of the disabled themselves. The Government, in deference to our national susceptibilities, has inaugurated a democratic scheme which can only to a limited extent be run from the center; its real go and vitality depend on public interest and local effort. If these are lacking the scheme fails. Even if the Government were to drop all red tape, and the treasury were to widen indefinitely its purse—even then the success of a voluntary scheme could only come from the good will and efforts of the public and of the disabled man himself. Everyone who knows a disabled man must lend a hand to bring to his knowledge, and to the knowledge of his family, and the opportunities which are open to him by a free education. If all do not lend a hand in disseminating the facts, then no matter what the Government and the funds may do, there will still be many thousand of disabled men who will become public charges. The moral for all this is that everyone must do his utmost if we are to avoid this disgrace for the country and for the disabled. The second obstacle is the reluctance of the disabled men themselves to learn a trade. They are naturally disinclined to effort after all they have suffered. It is to be hoped that everyone who reads to soldiers in hospitals will take to him General Gorgars' message of hope and cheer.

The Service League for the Handicapped, 54 West Adams street, Chicago, will be glad to furnish further information concerning this work of rehabilitation.

The following interesting comparison of "Kultur's" view of hunger, and Democracy's ideal concerning it has been issued by the Food Administration.

Let us keep in mind our necessary denial in food, that the nations of the world may not starve this year.

Two Ways of Regarding Hunger
"Starvation must serve our purpose. So we set it to work for Germany. By starvation we can accomplish in two or three years in East Poland more than we have in West Poland, which is East Prussia, in the last hundred years. With that in view, we propose to turn this force to our advantage."
General von Kries, of the German army.

(1915.)

"In addition to the supplying of those to whom we are already pledged, we now have the splendid opportunity and obligation of meeting the needs of those millions of people in the hitherto occupied territories who are facing actual starvation. The people of Roumania, Northern France, Serbia, Roumania, Montenegro, Poland, Russia and Armenia rely upon America for immediate aid....

The American people, in this most critical period of their history, have the opportunity to demonstrate not only their ability to assist in establishing peace on earth but also their consecration, by self-denial to the cause of suffering humanity."
Herbert Hoover.

(1918.)

Star of Gold

H. Everett Wilson, Red Cross and munitions driver with the French army during the most trying days of the World war, is dead.

He didn't die in action, but, just as he slipped quietly out of Wilmette one summer's day in 1917 and sailed for France and after many months in the thick of the fight quietly returned home to rest, so he slipped quietly out of this life at his home, last Monday.

And Everett Wilson was a hero. His commander in line of duty was quick to recognize that when he cited him for bravery, with the splendid tribute: "He gave proof of bravery and a high sense of duty.... doing everything possible to succor the wounded"....

It was back in the summer of 1917 when north shore men were flocking to recruiting stations eager to get into the fight against the German hordes, that H. Everett Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson, 727 Greenwood avenue, joined the army of prospective warriors. But Wilson had an injured eye. He was not accepted in any of the branches of service in the American forces.

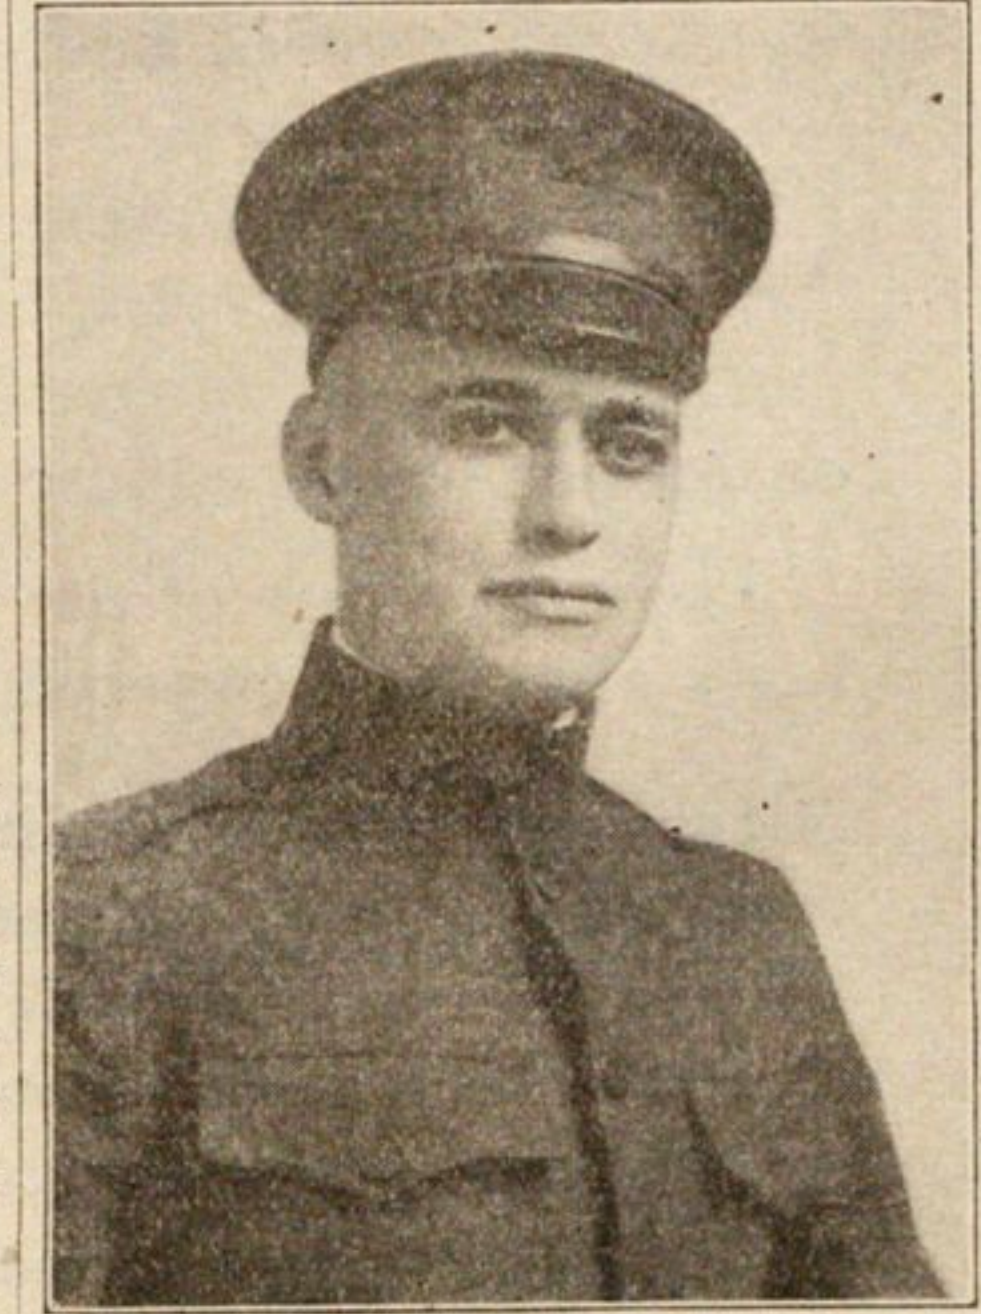

Undismayed he immediately applied for service with the French army in the American Field Service as munitions truck driver. In the course of a few weeks he was accepted and late in the summer sailed for France.

He was first attached to the American Field Service as camion driver under command of a French division. Those were the days when Germany was leading the fight and the conflict was exceedingly keen.

Later he transferred to the Red Cross service and was assigned as chauffeur of a staff officer's car. In this service he was almost invariably under shell fire. It was after entering this service that his distinguished work in the Field Service was officially recognized in a citation for bravery from the division commander.

The citation was briefly as follows:

"While subjected to a very violent bombardment in the course of a transport of material in proximity of the front lines, gave proof, under the command of Chief Scully, ably assisted by drivers Thompson and Macy, of bravery, and a high sense of duty, effecting the unloading of the material, doing everything possible to succor the wounded, and retiring with all their cars."

Wilson served in the Red Cross for several months and was eventually granted a six weeks' furlough after 10 months of duty at the front. He returned to the United States and Wilmette in June of last year. He never returned for duty. The strain of the service had been too great.

Wilson was 23 years of age and a graduate of New Trier High school.

He died of Pneumonia at his home, last Monday, after an illness of 2 weeks. Funeral services were private
