

Economy and Power In Stephens Engine

The heat created by exploding gasoline vapor which has been compressed within the cylinder produces power. In the Stephens perfected overhead-valve engine gasoline vapor from the carburetor is drawn through a short intake manifold located in the interior of the cylinder head, where it comes in contact with the "hot spot." This wall of metal is kept at constant high heat by exhaust gases from the two center cylinders.

Broken up and superheated by this contact with the "hot spot" the vapor passes through the intake manifold which, being surrounded by heat, maintains the high temperature of the gas and all the vapor enters the combustion chamber of the cylinder, properly heated for perfect combustion. The longest travel of vapor in the Stephens is ten and one-half inches. The extra large valves, one-half the size of the cylinder bore, insure a full charge of vapor entering the cylinders and a complete clean out of burned gases. The Stephens is a perfect cylinder charging machine.

This combination of the features of heating the gas vapor and the extra large valve sizes insures for the Stephens Salient Six engine fuel economy and great power.

MOLLOHAN IS NOW FORD SALES MANAGER

Friends of E. P. Mollohan, formerly service superintendent for R. D. Cunningham, north shore Ford dealer, will be pleased to learn of his advancement to the position of sales manager.

Mollohan, through his ever courteous and obliging disposition, coupled with expert knowledge of the Ford car obtained in the four years' experience with the Ford Motor Co. and the Cunningham north shore agency, has made of himself a much desired friend among Ford owners. With a natural sales talent and instinctive desire to please, he has grown to his present position.

The vacancy made in the service station by Mollohan's advancement has been filled by John Schatz, an expert mechanic, who has held the title of service superintendent with several automobile firms and is well known along the north shore.

Steven Zich, Cunningham's first superintendent, having just returned from government service, is assisting now to give Ford owners what everyone says is the most expert service rendered anywhere on Ford cars.
