

Political Equality League Hears Address On Issues of Constitutional Convention

"The women of the north shore can be a great power in influencing public sentiment," said Judge Orrin N. Carter to the Evanston Political Equality League, of which many north shore women are members, in an address on the needs and purposes of the constitutional convention, in the ballroom of the North Shore hotel last Friday evening.

"Although the women of the state of Illinois are not eligible to vote on the personnel of the convention which is to make the new constitution, they are to live under that law for years and are therefore concerned in the character of the men who will be nominated in the primaries next month. In an election of this kind the axiom coined by Abraham Lincoln in his debate with Stephen Douglas that public opinion is everything is particularly applicable. He who makes public sentiment is greater than the lawmaker for it is public sentiment that makes laws possible and secure. I believe that should women of this section become aroused and intelligently informed upon this subject, we will have a fair vote.

"I cannot too greatly stress," he continued, "the importance of this convention. Many important questions will be considered, the suffrage among them. I am particularly interested in seeing something done on the short ballot. In a city like Chicago it is impossible to vote intelligently because of the number of names appearing upon the ballot. Just where the line is to be drawn between elective and appointive offices, I do not dare to say. Perhaps if the chief executive and legislative offices were made elective and the rest filled by appointment, matters would be simplified. As to the judges, I believe that the public is going to demand that they be elected. Other issues to be considered are the reorganization of our jury system, the courts, the revenue and a new disposition of the religious question. "I should like to see," he went on to say, "the constitution submitted to the people in sections. The main body of the constitution at one time and the radical changes such as the initiative and referendum, suffrage, etc., as separate articles. The constitution should not be allowed to stand or fall upon fate of one portion.

"As to the qualifications necessary to the personnel of this convention," he stated in closing, "I don't believe that this assembly is the place for college professors, ministers or other men of one idea. They must be broad gauged, open minded, wide experienced men of a judicial temperament, able to pick and choose and give and take. They must not be propagandists or men representing any special interests who Samson-like will tear down the whole structure if denied their own particular wish."

FARMERS PLAN TO CUT LIVING COST

A determined fight to force down the cost of living by establishing closer co-operation between the farmer and the consumer has begun in New England.

Under the name of the New England Farm and Food foundation, with ample funds which they themselves have already pledged, prominent industrial leaders propose to rehabilitate agriculture in the district by injecting proper organization and distribution methods into the business of food production.

The waste of food products under present systems, congestion of certain products in one market while other centers are suffering from a scarcity of the same article and hoarding by profiteers are the particular evils upon which the foundation will center its efforts.

Co-operative buying will be introduced and sustained by every possible means; every short cut between farmer and buyer will be utilized. The foundation will assist and reinforce the efforts of such bodies as already exist along similar lines which in the past have been handicapped by lack of finances.

The New England farm, according to the foundation's preliminary statement, has lost out in competition with other industries because of lack of scientific methods applied to farming. Farmers have not been able to obtain the necessary credit, aids and facilities which are open to other forms of industry.

The foundation intends to remove these causes of the decline in agriculture by assisting the farmer to organize farmer's exchanges and such other approved agencies as may be found expedient. Paralleling the scientific methods of standardizing now employed in almost every industry, the farmer is to be aided in education along the lines of grading and standardizing the products of the farm. By eliminating long distance freight

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CHANGE IN RATES

TO PATRONS OF THE CHICAGO TELEPHONE COMPANY:

The Chicago Telephone Company hereby gives notice to the public that it has filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Illinois, schedules which will change the rates for local exchange and toll service in Winnetka as follows:

1. Make permanent the present temporary rates for local exchange service of all classes.
2. Restore the service connection charges and charges for moves and changes which were in effect during government control and were suspended August 1, 1919.
3. Restore the rates for person to person, appointment, messenger and collect, toll and long distance service, which were in effect during the period of government control and were suspended August 1, 1919.
4. Make permanent the present temporary rates for toll and long distance service within the State of Illinois.

A copy of the proposed schedules may be inspected by any interested party at the office of this Company in Winnetka.

The Public Utilities Commission of Illinois entered an order August 1, 1919, continuing in force temporarily certain of the above rates and set a further hearing upon this matter at the offices of the Commission at 175 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Illinois, at 10 o'clock A. M. September 12, 1919.

Copies of the order entered by the Commission on August 1, 1919, or any further information regarding this matter may be had by addressing the Secretary of the Commission at Springfield, Illinois.

rates and the profit of the numerous go-betweens who now handle farm products the foundation hopes to make the consumer's dollar go much further in the purchase of agricultural products. Another feature of the organization is its plan to assist young men, where possible, to obtain an agricultural education. By this and other means the foundation expects to attain its ultimate object.
