

Meat Markets Continue Business As Usual; Strikers Charge "Lockout"

Meat market proprietors on the north shore reported business good as usual and little or no inconvenience as the result of the strike of the meat cutters' and butcher workmen's Union which was called on Monday, November 17.

Proprietors on the north shore generally adhered to the agreement made among themselves two weeks ago to stand together against the demands of the union which required the "closed shop" and a minimum wage of $40 per week for meat cutters and butcher workmen. Most of the meat cutters and butchers were at work as usual this week despite the strike order.

In some instances, it was said, the strike order issued by the union leader in Evanston were openly repudiated by meatcutters who declared they were generally satisfied with present conditions and had no desire to leave their work and inflict a hardship on their families. The opinion among such men, it was explained, was that the strike was unwarranted and came without the consent or voice of the workmen on the north shore. They had not been notified of a session of the union said to have been held in Evanston on Monday, November 17.

Practically all of the meat cutters on the north shore are receiving a wage equal to or higher than the stipulated minimum wage of the union.

Though delegates of the union appeared in some north shore shops this week for the purpose of discouraging men who persisted in holding their jobs, there was no violence and no instances reported where the men heeded the requests of the union representatives.

Officials in the various Villages stated firmly to the proprietors that no "rough work" would be tolerated in their towns and that persons responsible for molestation of men who desired to remain at their jobs would be dealt with in summary fashion.

Four shops in Evanston were reported early this week to have agreed to the Union demands with certain concessions on the part of the union.

Union officials in Evanston this week announced their intention of making no concessions but to fight the market proprietors to the finish. The objected strenuously to the term "strikers" commonly applied to them. It was not a strike, they declared, but a plain lockout by the employers.

Not Much Need For "Job Census" Here

Governor Lowden has designated December 1 as "Job Census Day" in Illinois. He has issued a proclamation intended to stimulate employers to provide positions for every ex-service man who is not now working. There is practically no occasion for the survey on the north shore.

The governor's proclamation reads in part:

"Employers are in great need of competent men. There is an erroneous impression on the part of some employers that the men do not want work. Many men have also formed the impression that there is no work for them. To correct these false impressions on both sides is desirable. Therefore, Monday, December 1, 1919, is designated as "Job Census day" for the state of Illinois, and all manufacturers and other employers in this state are asked to furnish a list of all opportunities for employment existing in their various plants and shops as of that date.

"All unemployed ex-service men who have not previously registered for employment are requested to register their names and needs with the local chamber of commerce, welfare organization, or bureau for returning soldiers on or before Dec. 1, 1919.

"All citizens are called upon to lend their best effort and influence to the success of this work."

NEGLECTED SOLDIER GRAVES

"Reports that the graves of American soldiers in France are being neglected follow one another with depressing regularity. The lack of care given the bodies of the dead seems to be fully as great as the lack of care that caused the sacrifice of the lives of a good portion of those who lie silent overseas."—Detroit Free Press.
