

EARLY ACTIVITIES OF ENGLISH 'DRYS' SEEN BY EMBLEM

Indication of temperance activity in Great Britain as early as 1863 is seen in the medal of the New British and Foreign Temperance Society donated this morning by Mrs. E. A. Frust, 1346 Astor street, Chicago, to the national headquarters of the W. C. T. U. in Evanston.

The medal, which is dated, gives the pledge of those Britishers who almost a hundred years ago frowned on ale.

It states—"We do agree that we will not use intoxicating liquors as a beverage nor traffic in them; that we will not provide them as an article of entertainment or for persons in our employment! that in all suitable ways we will discountenance their use."

A fountain appears in relief on this side of the medal and under it appears a Biblical injunction, "Thy waters shall be pure."

On the other side is a bouquet of the thistle for Scotland, the shamrock for Ireland, the rose for England, and the American flag.

"United We Conquer," was their slogan.

AND BARK ONLY

Many a hard-working man would like to lead a dog's life.

NEGROES BARRED

Negro voters will not be allowed to participate in the Alabama Democrat primary on May 11 under a ruling made by W. D. Nesbitt, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee.

MAINE'S BATTLE

It took from 1775 until 1819 for Maine to gain separate statehood from Massachusetts.
