Some Battle Now

Word of Winnetka's unprecedented school battle has spread far and wide. It has achieved such importance as to prompt editorial comment in one of Chicago's big dailies. The accompanying editorial is reprinted from the Chicago Herald and Examiner of a recent date.

Going To It

There are fights and fights. For an example of the old-fashioned kind, knock 'em down and drag 'em out, one down and another come on, we recommend consideration of the situation in Winnetka.

The question is of a school site. Shall it be out near the marsh, where there is plenty of room, twelve acres to play in, an outdoor hygienic institution of the most advanced type, which some of the children must travel three miles to reach? Or shall it be less expensive, less "advanced", but central in position?

That is the main issue. But dozens of others are involved. If the school is on the marsh, omnibusses must run to collect the children. Evidence on the cost, the reliability and the morals of the bus system has been collected from all over the United States and presented elaborately to the citizens.

The population of Winnetka is anywhere from four to seven thousand. The new school, as planned, will cost from two to three hundred thousand dollars. Analyses of expense in ratio of population are as common in Winnetka as robins. The effect of private subscriptions on public education is argued on every street corner, of which Winnetka has more to the square mile than any suburb in America.

Neighbors of long standing glare and pass each other by. Both sides have publicity bureaus, which clog the mail with circulars. Votes in the coming referendum are as carefully calculated as a millionaire's income tax. The feeling of last Tuesday's election in Chicago is milk-and-watery in comparison.

We hope the matter is settled amicably. Time was when the population of Winnetka consisted of fifty-three Harvard graduates and their families, and a Mayor. That was plain sailing. But the winds of progress have blown up a rough sea since then.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Do not forget the University of Chicago Glee club and orchestra concert at New Trier High school, Saturday night. The concert is under the auspices of the Illinois Simmons club. Simmons college is the first college founded to equip women for self maintenance. It is located in Boston and is the third largest women's college in the country.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE HERE SUNDAY EVENING

What is characterized as "one of the worlds greatest lectures" is to be given in the gymnasium at Community House Sunday evening, May 2, at 8 o'clock, by John G. Woolley, representative of the American Anti-Saloon league. Mr. Woolley's topic is announced as "When Good Men rule the World." Mr. Woolley is a lawyer, editor and reformer of note and every resident of the village is urged to hear his famous temperance lecture Sunday evening.

LAKE STREET IS NOW CALLED "HIBBARD ROAD"

The Village Council has authorized the renaming of Lake street at the west limits of the village, "Hibbard Road" in memory of the late William Gold Hibbard, former prominent Winnetka citizen. Mrs. Hibbard, the widow, it is said, proposes to plant the entire street length in elms. The street extends from Winnetka avenue to North avenue. A movement has been underway, it is said, to convert the thoroughfare into a state highway.
