

U. OF I. INSTRUCTS PHYSICAL TRAINERS

State University To Be Pioneer in Movement To Prepare Instructors for Youth of Land

Because thirty-five per cent of the men of the nation had defects serious enough to interfere with the performance of their full military duty, and because practically all of these defects could have been corrected by proper physical training during the school age, more than passing attention is being given nationally to the courses in athletic coaching at the University of Illinois. It is a new departure in academic instruction and the wide attention it is receiving is justified by the work to be accomplished.

Train Instructors

A bill now before Congress will, if passed, require compulsory physical education in forty-eight states. To carry on such work, it is estimated that 66,000 trained men will be needed. Less than 6,000 such men are now available; and so the University of Illinois is doing its share in the work. Should such a law never be enacted, the demand for well educated and trained men—specialists in Physical Education—will exceed the supply for many years to come.

Backed by the conviction that the usual defects could be properly corrected through physical education in children—a view also held by Secretary of War Baker, George Huff, director of athletics at the University, established the School for Athletic Coaching in 1914. That school is for the summer period only. Since then a four year course in Athletic Coaching has been organized as a regular part of the University curriculum, completion of which leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Logical Pioneer

With what has been called the best balanced coaching staff in the country, and with an athletic record of which she is justly proud, Illinois should logically be one of the pioneers in this movement. The coaches who have brought Illinois her victories comprise the staff of instruction in the coaching school, George Huff, in baseball; Harry Gill in track and field athletics; Ralph Jones in basketball and training; Robert C. Zupke in football; George "Patsy" Clark in basketball and baseball; Arthur Schuettner, E. A. Knoth, and E. R. Knollin in physical education; John L. Griffith in organization and management; E. J. Manley in swimming and intramural athletics; Paul Prehn in wrestling; and D. M. Bullock in training and massage.

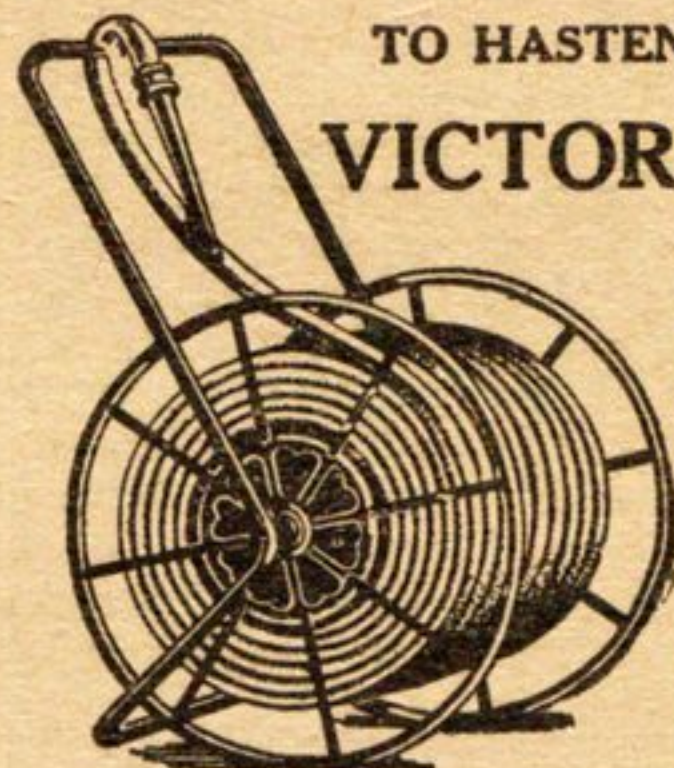

EVANSTON THEATER SALE TO MOTOR FIRM HAS FALLEN THROUGH

It was announced this week that the Evanston theater property is again on the market, the deal with the Oakland-Phillips Motor company having fallen through. It was understood that the automobile concern was to remodel the theater and have a first class garage and showroom. It is learned that when the bids were opened it was found that the prices for such remodeling were prohibitive and the plans were abandoned. In the meantime the Oakland-Phillips company has purchased the Evanston electric garage and is located in that building. The owners of the theater report that the old playhouse is again on the market.
