Classify Yourself

We have found it convenient to classify prospective Ford owners according to their knowledge of the car; its usefulness, adaptability, riding comfort, etc., and again according to the amount of energy we must expend before they buy a New Ford Car. The Grades follow:

A—Present Ford owners and their intimate friends who actually know the car will buy nothing else; no effort on our part required.

B—The next door neighbor or acquaintance of a Ford owner, "people of means" or those who now own several cars, are easily convinced and appreciate the value of the Ford.

C—The man who has never had a car, and invariably is misled by the sales talk of the imitation car salesman. When he learns from Ford owners and hears of Ford Service, he forgets the other car unless the information comes too late.

D—"D" stands for many things, but in our case it represents the class who know within themselves that they should drive a Ford but as yet they do not. They are trying to support an "Imitation" or an "In-between," or with false pride and meagre income they deceive themselves, trying to deceive their friends. When they see through that folly, it means the delivery of another Ford car.

In which class do you belong?
