

School Notes

Among letters of inquiry concerning the individual system received this week is one from the assistant superintendent of schools in Lincoln, Neb. After asking many questions concerning the work of the Winnetka school, he says:

"I have read of your individual system in Winnetka and am very much impressed by it. I am writing this letter of inquiry so that I may know more of your plan.

"We are carrying on what we think is a worth-while program of standard testing, both mental and educational. We have some special rooms for the mental defectives but we have not worked out a scheme for extensive reclassification or subject promotions. I believe heartily in this theory and am delighted to know that you are working it out, and am anxious to learn more of your scheme."

Other letters concerning the Winnetka educational system have been received this week from Prof. Charles H. Judd, director of the school of education, University of Chicago; Prof. W. W. Kemp, president of the State Normal school in San Jose, Cal.; R. C. Moore, secretary of the Illinois State Teachers' association; Belle L. Parks, principal Superior school, East Cleveland, O.; Benjamin Greenburg principal of the William T. Harris school, New York City; W. W. Lewton, superintendent of schools in Cicero, Ill.; and assistant superintendent of schools at Winnipeg, Canada.

One of the teachers of the Chicago

Latin school, who has charge of the eighth grade, and has English, French and dramatics, spent Monday of this week visiting the Winnetka school and studying the individual system.

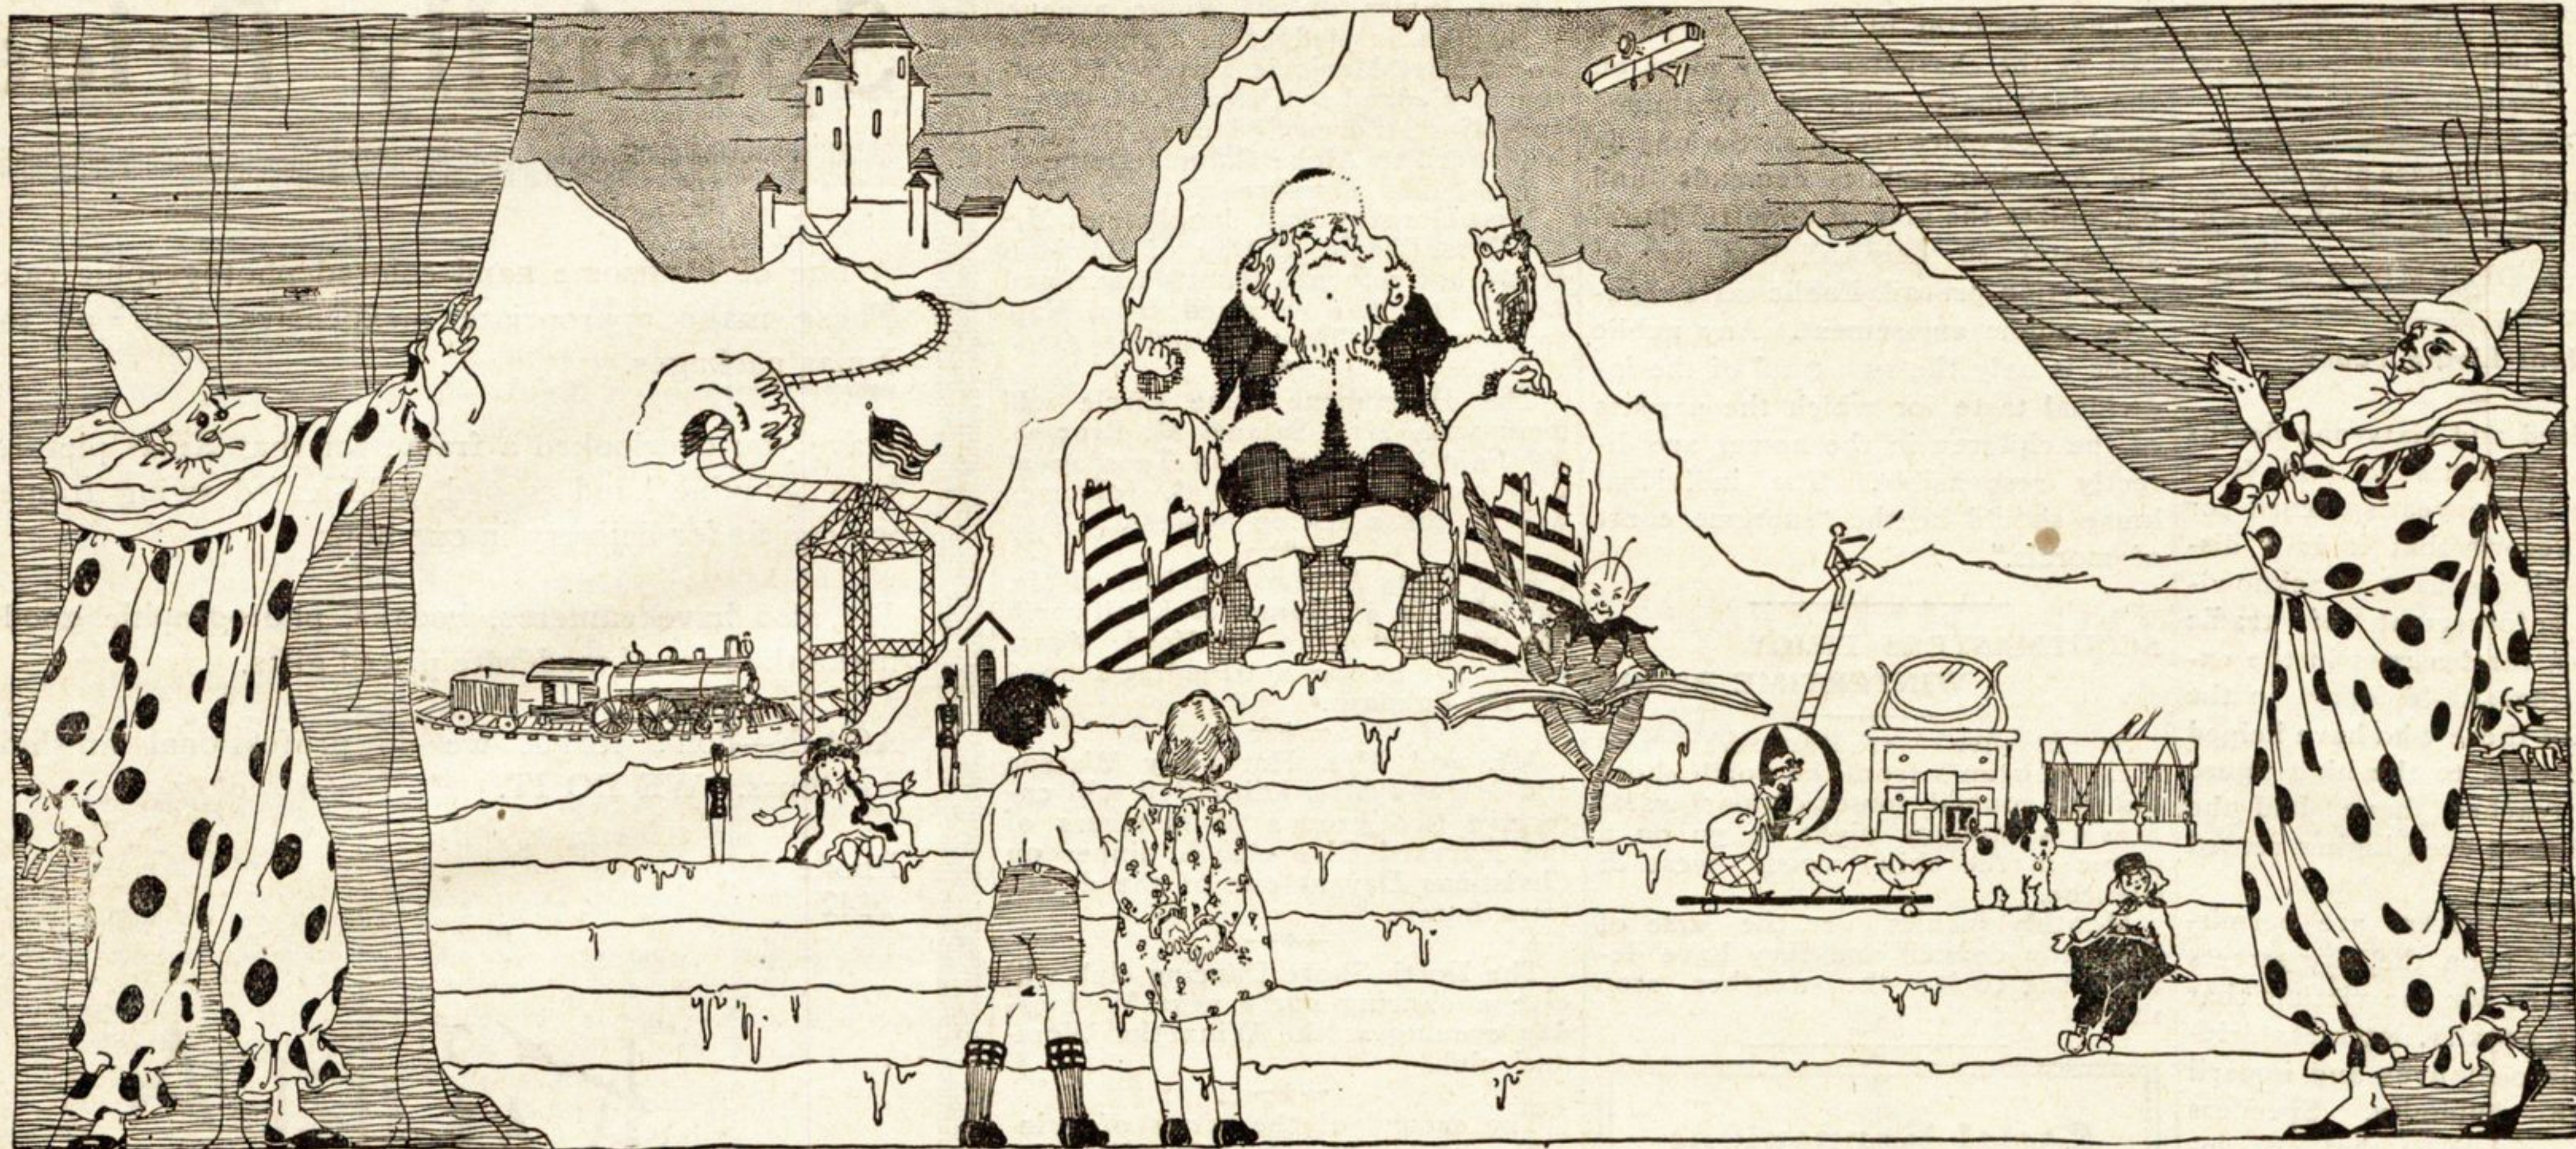

A member of an advanced class in education of the University of Chicago, at the request of Dean Nathaniel Butler, made a study of the Winnetka schools Monday in order to report on their work to a university class.

Kansas was represented Tuesday by a teacher from a private school who spent the day investigating the individual system in order that she might report on it to the faculty of her school.

True, Santa has been making heavy demands on us in filling the requests of the thousands of letters sent him, but we still have a representative selection of good toys left. Care in handling them has prevented reserve stocks from becoming even the least bit shop worn, so you will find here assortments as fresh and new as those of the opening.

These Last Days
