

Triangles Drop Fast Game To Waukegan

Hanselman Hurls in Stellar Fashion but Loses Argument when Support Slips in Vital Spots

Winnetka Triangles, fast local baseball outfit, dropped a thrilling encounter to the Waukegan nine Sunday afternoon at the Skokie lot. The final score was 3 to 1.

Hanselman, local hurler, deserved victory, registering twelve strikeouts and permitting but a brace of dinky bingles, but lost his game when his support cracked in spots.

The Triangles meet the husky Beaconsfield nine of the Chicago K. of P. league next Sunday on the local field and are confident of a record turnout of fans to witness the engagement.

On Sunday, August 20, the locals hook up with Highland Park in the final game of the North Shore league season. Triangles now hold third position in the league standing and expect to be boosted a notch two weeks hence at the expense of the chesty Highland Parkers.

HEAVY LOSSES REPORTED

George Imes, formerly of Winnetka, who now spends most of his time at Wauseon, Ohio, was in the village this week on a brief visit with friends. George comes to Winnetka about every six months. There's a reason. George will be just nothing out and, more than likely, somewhat ahead of the old game when he gets back to Wauseon. His Winnetka friends are so kind and generous.

BUSINESS BLOCK SOLD

E. Peters, of Winnetka, this week purchased the building at 556 Center street, from George F. Gonsalves, according to a report emanating from local real estate circles.

CHICAGO COMMONS GROUPS FETED BY CHURCH WOMEN

Mothers and children of the Chicago Commons were feted Tuesday and Thursday of this week when women of the Winnetka Congregational church played hostess to two groups. The first contingent of picnickers came to the village on Tuesday and a second group on Thursday.

There were auto rides, picnic luncheons and entertainment in variety.

The outings are an annual event.

PRISON DOORS YAWN

A. Norman, who resides at the home of Dan Noe, Village Purchasing Agent, got into police toils early this week when he was selected from out of all the citizens of the village as prowling material. He had left a certain home to which he had escorted the best — in all the world, etc., and was homeward bound when neighbors in the vicinity of the abode of the escorted one, picked him out as a hard looking person. The police straightened out the tangle in a jiffy and A. Norman was permitted to proceed in peace. He isn't a bit hard looking, either.

BUILDING PERMITS

Building permits issued this week by the Winnetka Department of Public Works, included a $16,000 home for M. P. Kiel at 349 Hawthorne lane, and a $1,000 garage for Guy S. Hammond at 1346 Scott avenue.
