

NEW TRIER GRADS ARE READY FOR COLLEGE

Entrance Examinations For Eastern Colleges Show 11 of 12 Candidates Pass Without Serious Difficulty

Last June twelve graduates of New Trier took the College Board Examinations for Eastern colleges. The examinations were given on the campus of Northwestern University, Evanston, and in the Northwestern University building, Chicago.

Of the twelve students taking the June examination, eleven took the New Plan, while one chose the Old Line Plan. Nine of the twelve students succeeded in passing the June examinations but one failed in one subject and another in two subjects. These two students were permitted to take the examination over in the subjects in which they failed. Last week word was received that both had passed and were admitted to the colleges to which they were applying for admission.

The third student who failed passed in one subject of the four. Another student took the examination under the Old Line Plan in Algebra and Chemistry subjects and failed. The two students who failed in the examination ranked in the lower quarter of the class.

While a public high school such as New Trier cannot lay its chief emphasis upon preparing students for the is offered the type and quality of eastern colleges and universities, work which is of such a nature as to enable students who are reasonably intelligent and willing to apply themselves to enter directly the best colleges and universities of the East.

Offer Special Courses

Last year special classes in Latin, Mathematics, and History were organized for those students who were preparing to enter Eastern colleges. Special emphasis was also placed upon French and Physics. There are very few secondary schools in the United States, public or private, that are better equipped or have more able teachers on their faculties than is to be found at New Trier.

The students who passed the examinations and the schools they will attend are as follows:

Walter Pattison, Harvard.
Montgomery Major, Harvard.
Mary Lothrop, Wellesley.
Virginia Copeland, Wellesley.
Marion Montgomery, Wellesley.
Jennie Dubbs, Wellesley.
Mary Louise Scheidenhelm, Wellesley.

Jessie Lloyd, Smith.
Norma McKenzie, Mt. Holyoke.
James Swan, Princeton.
Arthur Seibold, Old Line Plan Examinations, Princeton.

G. A. R. CONVENTION STIRRING SPECTACLE

Winnetka Member of Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic Re-counts Incidents of Encampment

Mrs. Katherine Getman, mother of Mrs. Ernest White of Winnetka, and D. E. Getman of Hubbard Woods, has returned from a memorable encampment of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic held last week at Indianapolis in connection with the National Convention of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Fearing that the receding years may be dimming the minds of modern America to the glory attached to the men who saved the Union in the grave days of Rebellion, prompted Mrs. Getman to remark at some length upon the very remarkable scenes and activities at Indianapolis.

Among other events there was a parade of 9,000 veterans of the Civil War, most of them marching, some of them, the burden of years weighing a bit too heavily, conveyed in automobiles. Marching to the stirring battle call of fife and drum and a medley of anthems reminiscent of the battle camp, the procession presented a thrilling and soul-stirring spectacle.

Among the notable guests at the convention were Dr. Harding, father of the President of the United States, and his bride. Mrs. Harding pledged herself to work diligently in the interest of the organization and the cause that gave birth to a new freedom in America.

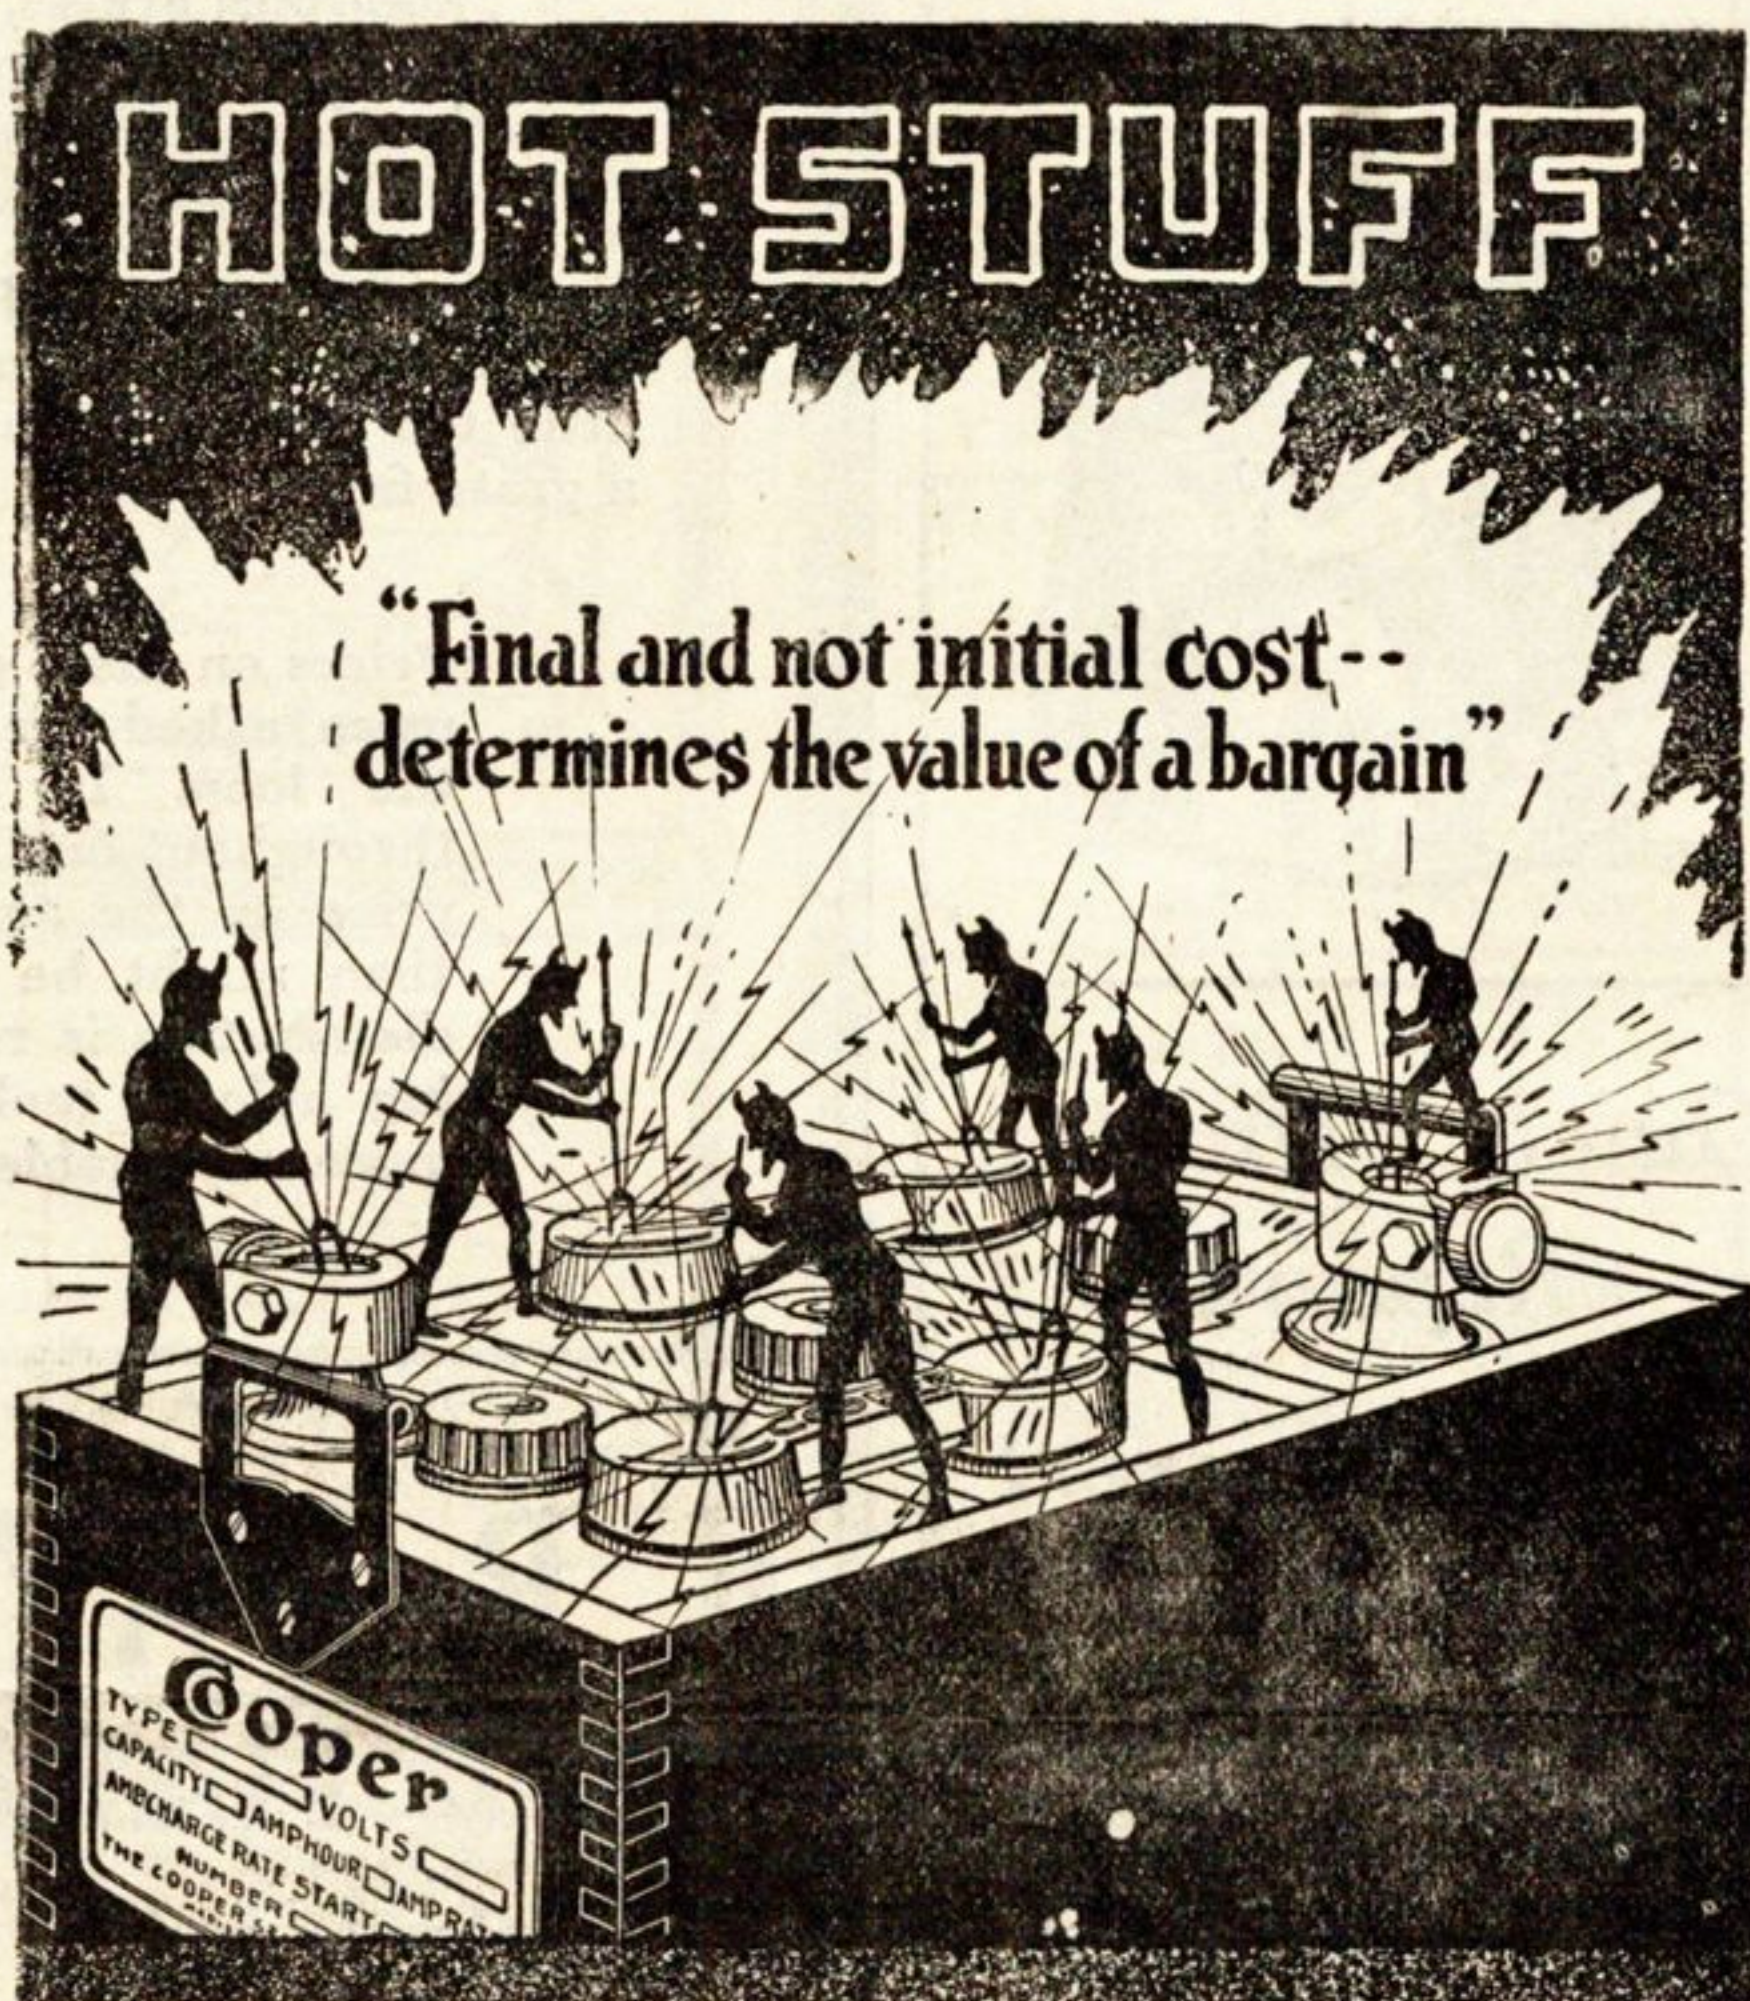

Perhaps the most impressive sight of all was the hour of parting, when comrade met comrade, many, perhaps, for the last time. Here was a touching scene of tearful farewell and the stirring handclaps of those who had stood side by side in America's most perilous days fighting in the cause of freedom and right.
