Frozen Skokie Marsh Affords Opportunity For New Winter Sport

HE latest fad in the more advanced sporting circles of the North Shore is skate sailing. 'Tis said that a good skipper may make more than 30 miles an hour by the clever handling of the unique little hand sail he carries. It is a light leg 'o mutton canvass about ten by six feet in size, braced up the middle. The skater extends his arms sidewise, holding the leeches and bracing his back against it as he glides over the ice. The light boom is back of his knees, the peak extends several feet above his head.

The favorite gathering place for skaters is the Skokie marsh, particularly the broad expanse of ice at the Winnetka Municipal golf links, where motors from every town on the North Shore are parked for blocks along Willow road while their occupants enjoy the greatest of winter sports for hours at a time. Several of the new sails may be seen there almost any afternoon, while many impromptu imitations produce somewhat the same results as the expensive originals from the Chicago sporting goods houses. It is claimed that there is an ice route from the west end of Central street to Glencoe which is rough only in spots and for the most part excellent skating.

Among the well known young people who frequent the Winnetka ice field are Mr. and Mrs. Morris Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Gary Sutcliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ackert Banks, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Walcott, Miss Lois Wilder, Miss Josephine Dole, Miss Gladys Spry, Miss Sarah Louise Buffington, Gerald Butler, George Buffington, Robert Landreth and Donald Miller.

Glaser, of Glencoe, which took place in the home of an aunt of the bride, Mrs. Thomas G. Milsted. The Rev. Douglas Cornell read the service.

The train of roses point lace, of the white satten wedding gown had been worn by the bridegroom's late mother, at her own wedding, likewise the lace that trimmed the tulle veil.

The maid of honor, Miss Virginia Graves, wore a light shaded flame chiffon frock, trimmed with crystals. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret MacCaughy, Miss Jean Milsted, Miss Carol de Windt, and Miss Esther Prentice wore frocks of flame chiffon and crystal. All wore black satin hats draped with lace.

Edward L. Glaser served his son as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Albert S. Gardner, Mr. Peter Van Brunt, Mr. John J. Finlay, and Mr. Edward Street.
