League of Women Voters Hold Final Meeting Tuesday

WITH sincere belief in the noble purpose which gave birth to our nation and in the lofty principles which have been wrought into its constitution; with ardent love for the country which has conferred upon me a priceless heritage of freedom and opportunity, I gratefully acknowledge my privileges and obligations as an American citizen, and promise to vote at all primaries and elections so that I may help to give assurance that "government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

The Chicago Association of Commerce sent out this communication in the form of a Citizen's Pledge to hundreds of citizens in Chicago. This so perfectly expresses the feeling and sentiment of the Winnetka League of Women Voters that it is printed with the sincere hope that every woman in Winnetka will read it carefully and thoughtfully, with the conviction that this "American Citizen" is herself. The Winnetka League has come into existence in our community for the purpose of augmenting strength through the organization, so that this strength may be used in helping to effectively remove the dishonest or incompetent office holder, putting into his place the man or woman best fitted for that position. Just how helpful we may be in this direction will depend upon how intelligent we are in our voting and how persistent we are in our efforts. The League extends a cordial invitation to every woman in Winnetka to attend its meetings.

The last meeting of the League until October, will be on Tuesday afternoon, May 9, at 2:30 o'clock at the Winnetka Woman's Club. Mrs. James W. Morrison, well known in Chicago for the splendid civic work that she is doing will give an address on "Women in the Party." Remember the date and time, invite friends and come.

THE QUESTIONS

Dear Kiddie Nook:

"What to wear," that's the question—Whether 'tis better to buy clothes from you, or have them made at home, the same as mother and grandmother did many years ago, before they had such modern and convenient stores as today—that's another question.

When mother wants anything becoming herself, I notice she prefers an up-to-date dress-maker, or else a reliable store, where she can find the best of everything ready to wear, usually at lower prices than comparable with home-made affairs. I guess she knows the style and quality are hard to duplicate in most cases. Now, why shouldn't the same logic apply to myself? I like becoming things for school, parties, or wherever I go.

Every time I pass your attractive store for Children, my questions are answered beyond a doubt. I think it glorious to have an up-to-date store so handy, where we can buy latest styles for young people, at prices so reasonable that we can't compete at home. Here's wishing you every encouragement!

P. S. I want to make a little confession. One day, we saw an adorable dress in your window. I wanted to come in and price it, but mother said, "No, no. They might expect us to buy. We shall go home and copy it." After the dress was made, I was so disappointed because it didn't look like the original, that we have concluded it don't pay to economize that way. Besides, I wonder whether it is just the right thing to copy your styles?

ANSWER

Your questions deserve helpful and conscientious attention. Hence, the Junior Column is entirely at your service this week.

You seem to know the answer, however. Indeed, most boys and girls in our vicinity would probably answer your questions in about the same words — Kiddie Nook.

As for copying our styles, we appreciate the compliment of having our selections imitated. There are two reasons, however, why we do not believe it quite fair to copy. The designers and makers of these styles deserve support, not to forget the store which offers them to you at lowest possible prices. Then, if styles are copied too much, they cease to be exclusive, and that is the main reason why, for the sake of our customers, we ask you to buy our dresses, if you like them, and not merely copy them. We sell very few garments alike for this reason, that we may assure our customers of exclusive styles.
