

SUMMER SWIMMERS TO GIVE EXHIBITION

Robinson's Classes Prepare Annual Tank Affair

Relay races between boys and girls, push ball games and exhibitions by instructor Tom Robinson will be features of the thirteenth annual exhibition of the Evanston Summer Swimming school to be held in the Northwestern university gymnasium pool Saturday afternoon, August 19, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Preliminary plans for the event are now being formed and efforts are being made to secure noted swimmers for special exhibitions. Manager Robinson announces that he may secure Norman Ross and other nationally known water experts for the afternoon program.

More than 530 people are now enrolled in the Swimming school and the majority of them will participate in the exhibition which marks the close of the course. Those learning to swim range in ages from 5 to middle aged men and women.

Races and water stunts of all kinds will be included on the program in addition to the special feature events. It is the plan to have an event for all ages, the older the contestant the longer the race.

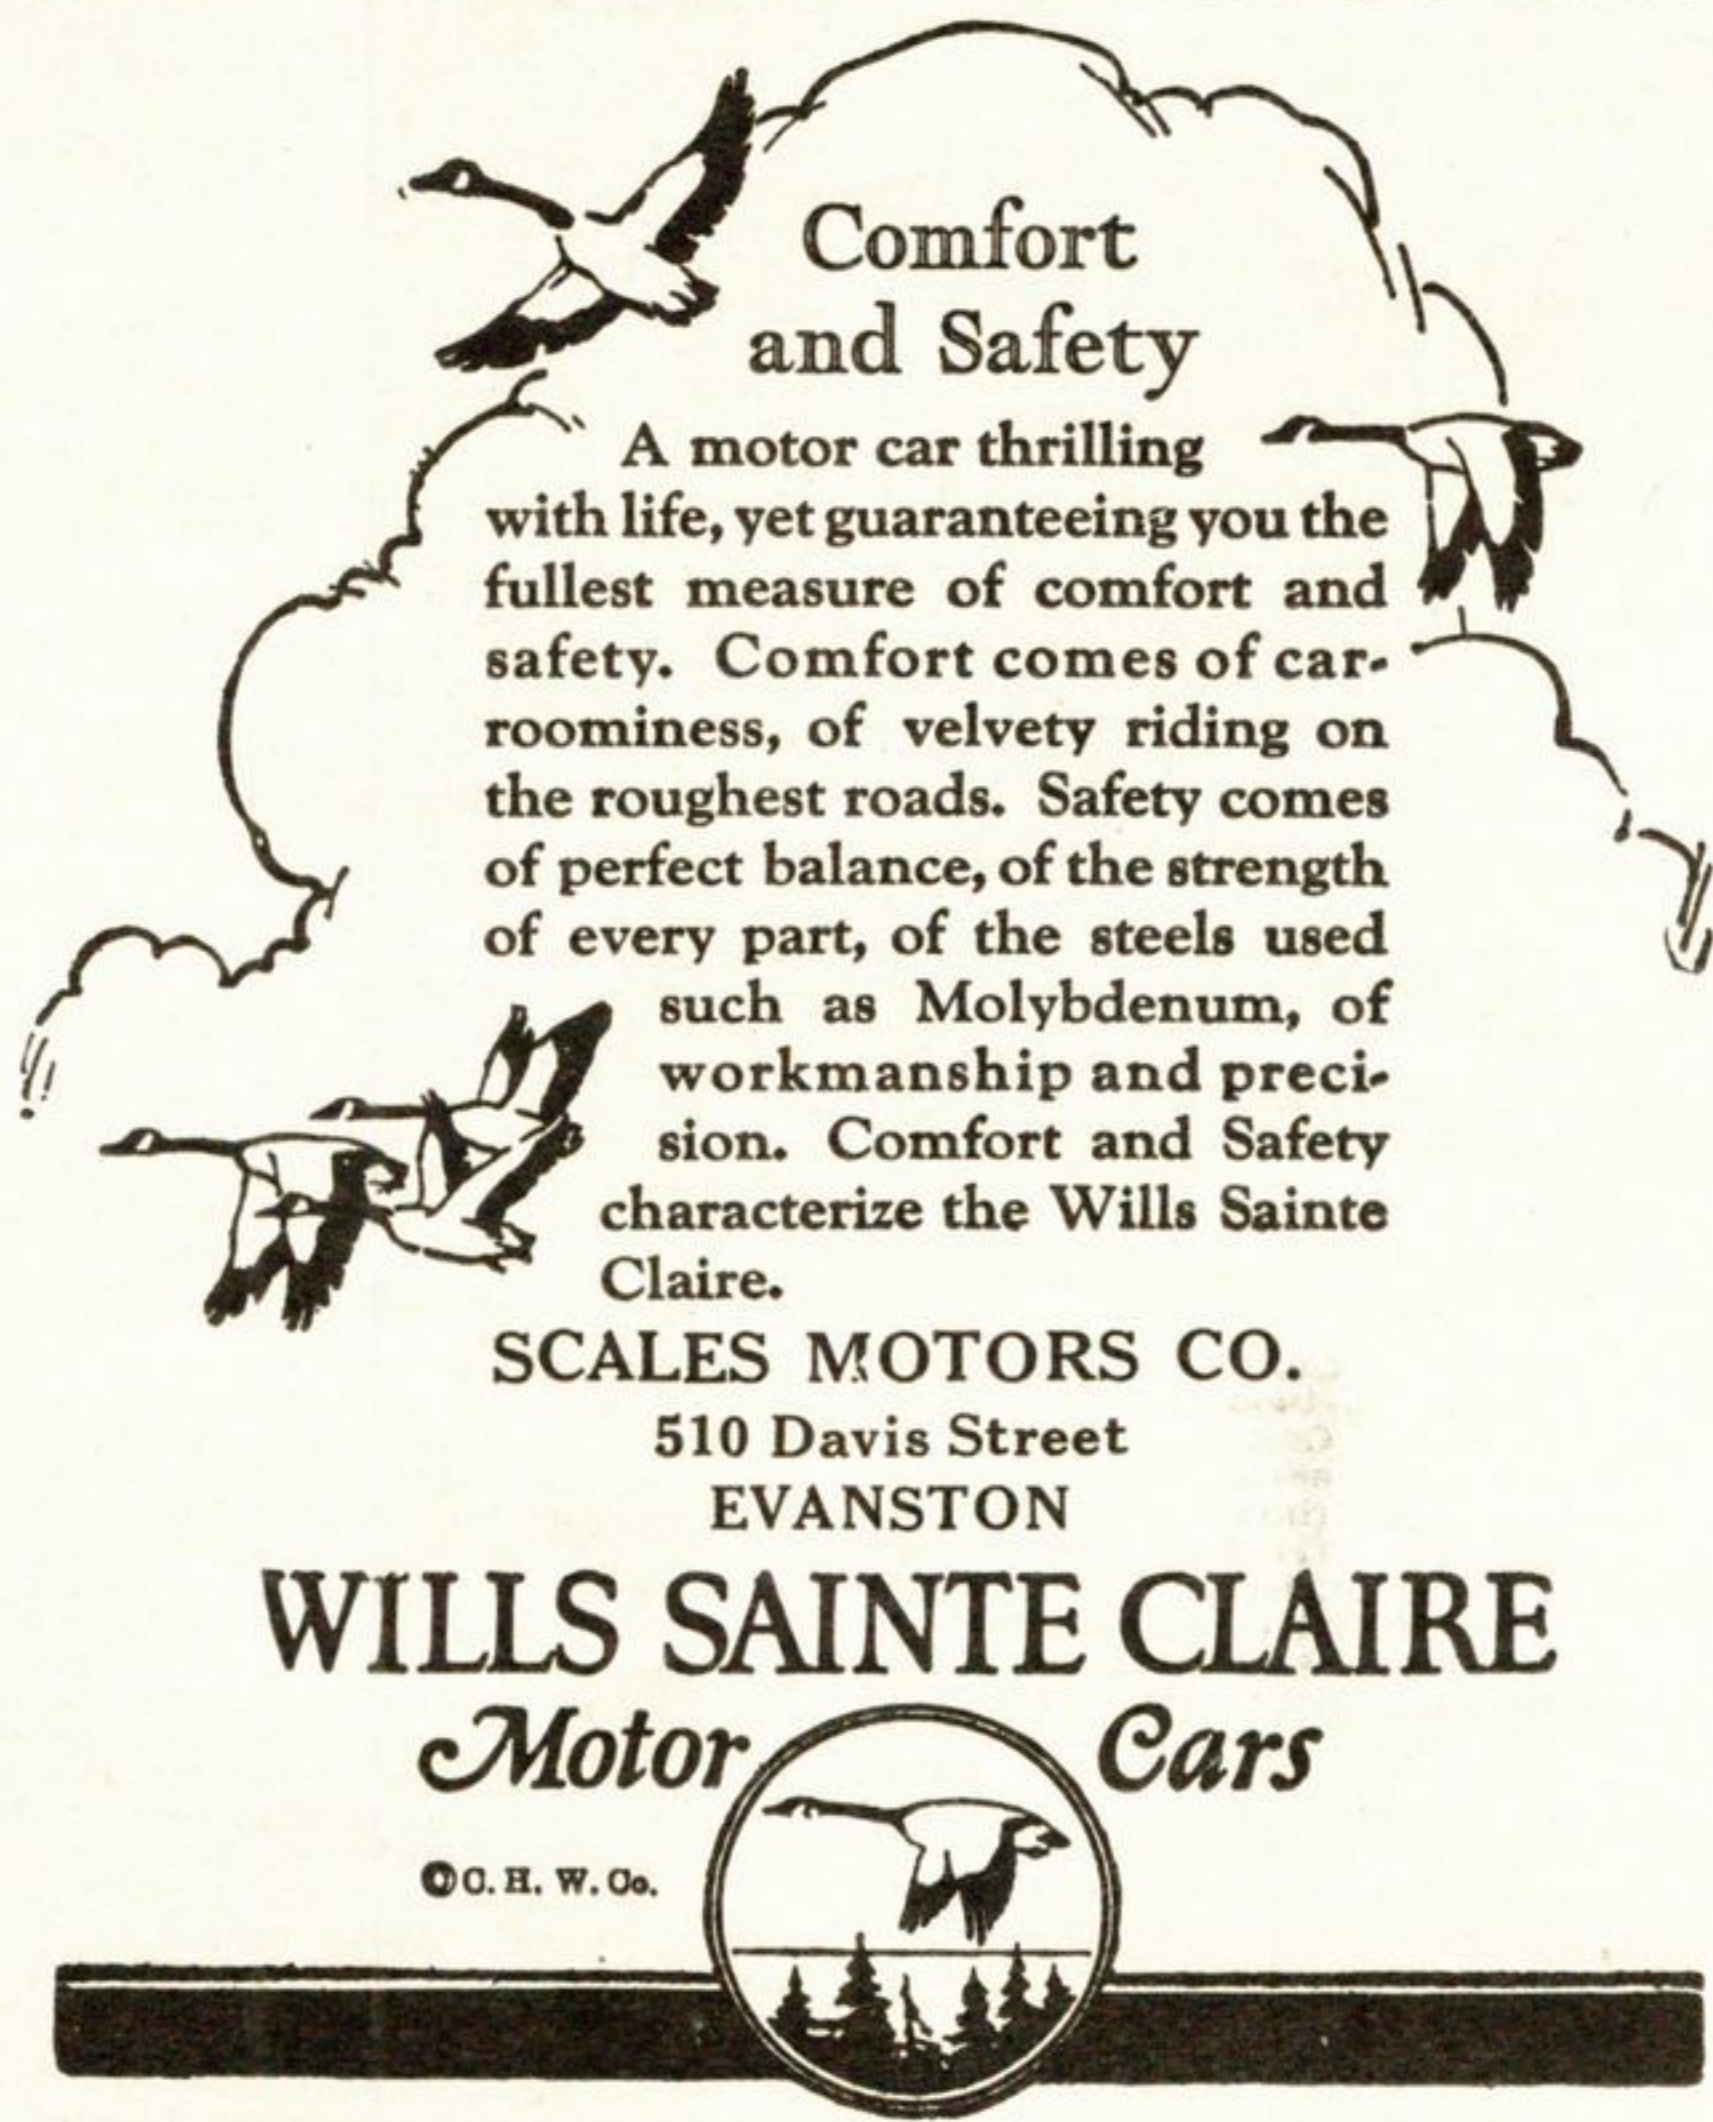

Coach Robinson, who during the swimming school does not enter the water, will give a special exhibition for the benefit of his pupils that they may see their instructor in action. All Evanston is invited to attend the exhibition as guests of the Summer Swimming school.
