WHAT IT COSTS TO RUN AN A-1 CAMP

Camp Life Increases Child's Social Consciousness

When asked concerning the expenses of the Community House Summer Camps, J. W. F. (Chief) Davies, the director, stated that the resources of the camp were:

Balance from last year.....	$ 375.53
Camp Card Party .....	436.21
Camp Fees and Gifts .....	1,552.24

Total	$2,363.98
-------	------------

He stated that the expenses this year were:

For food, rent of boats, hauling supplies, etc.....	$1,440.76
Help .....	483.15
Added Equipment .....	515.94

Total	$2,439.85
-------	------------

"Well, you didn't come out quite even," said the interviewer. "No, but we purchased four canoes for next year at a special price of $200," he replied. "This was a necessary item, although, in order to accommodate the camp fully, it will be necessary to purchase two more canoes. To rent the many row boats needed for camp is a large item of expense each year. The canoes are much lighter to handle than the row-boats, and will be better for our 'River Trip' which the boys and girls take during camp."

Camp Has Warm Friends
 "The moderate camp fees do not wholly take care of the expense of camp," said Mr. Davies. By means of the money raised through a camp benefit card party each year, the many friends of these camps help to make it possible to meet these expenses. Last spring under the leadership of Mrs. Arthur Barrett and her committee $436 was raised for this purpose and to give some scholarships for camp. The Congregational choir took advantage of the fact that this is an open camp and, under the direction of Miss Mary Porter Pratt held an entertainment and helped to send three of their number. Last summer a new Evinrud boat was purchased at a cost of $135 and also a new motor. More mattresses were needed for the cots, which cost $41 and a new tent was bought for $32.50.

Build Observation Tower
 "A good piece of constructive work is accomplished in camp each year. This summer the boys built an observation tower feet in height, which was finished by the girls. This is the highest point of observation in this part of the country and from its top a great panoramic view is obtained of the surrounding country.

"These camps offer not merely healthy recreation. We are very particular about the leadership and were especially fortunate this year in having as leaders ones, for the most part, who had been trained by previous experience in camp.

Character Builder
 "If camp has any value, that value must be realized through noticeable growth in the attitude and relationship of the boys and girls to normal life. Camp should offer more than mere health, fun and development in out-of-door skill—it should make for character. One fine comment which was made recently by a father, indicates that this value which is so much desired by the leaders of these camps is being realized. He said, 'Community House Camp has had one outstanding effect on my daughter—she has a decided increase in social consciousness and puts the good of the whole before her own wishes and desires now as a rule. We notice it in the home, where she has been called upon this summer to do many things which conflicted with her own wishes. She has risen to these extra duties splendidly, and I lay this largely to camp and to the vision she got there through its leadership."
