

NEW TRIER PLAY PROMISES TREAT

"Pomander Walk" To Be Seen March 17

BY D. F. WARE

The North Shore is in for a treat. March 17, the New Trier Dramatic club plans to present "Pomander Walk," a delightful three-act comedy by Louis Parker, the author of "Disraeli."

The title is of a certain community where live some delightfully unusual characters. Several love affairs, both greatly interesting and delightfully funny, keep the theme of the story steadily unrolling before the audience. There is the one eyed admiral with his beliefs as to how the settlement should be run. There is a love affair for this character for a widow finally gains her ends and secures him in holy wed-lock. Then the most brilliant love affair, that of Marjolin and Jack Sayle, of which nothing must be told until you see it on the stage. Even the hunch-back violinist is involved in still another love affair. Surely you can imagine what laughable and interesting situations will be obtained from these three romances.

Stage Setting Difficult

The scenery and stage setting is much more difficult than any other production has required. The stage crew are undertaking to construct all the setting themselves. The set calls for five separate cottages each with a movable door and window, a river and a gasbo or summer house.

The play is delightfully different. The setting is very unique and all the characters unusual. In fact this might be called a character play.

"Pomander Walk" will be presented at the New Trier high school auditorium.

Bank Will Make Awards For Prosperity Topics

Is prosperity just around the corner? Apparently it is and some of the best authorities in the United States are voicing the idea. That one of the large Chicago banks is backing this sentiment with something more than money is revealed in the announcement this week by Chicago Trust company of a series of prizes for the stimulation of financial and industrial research. Dean Ralph E. Heilman, head of Northwestern University's School of Commerce, who has been selected by the trust company as chairman of a committee on award, says that signs point strongly to American leadership not only in world finance but in industry.

The Chicago Trust company awards, Dean Heilman asserts, are based on the assumption that Uchele Sam will need highly trained bankers and industrial managers in the next decade than are available now. Hence, the prize offer at this time bears unusual significance, he adds. The awards are as follows:

A triennial prize of $2,500, first to be awarded in 1925, for the best contribution on any subject relating to American business development and the modern trust company, or any allied subject in the field of finance.

A first prize to be awarded annually, of $300 and a second prize of $200 for briefer financial and industrial studies, to be made by undergraduates of economics, business, finance, or law; beginning in the summer of 1923.

"I am sold to the idea that the United States soon is to enter an era of real business revival," said Dean Heilman, "and I think that the big financial and industrial institutions of the country will then feel the need for leaders of exceptional ability. Everyone admits that the European situation at present will render unsafe any definite prognostication but whatever turn affairs over there take it appears to be almost certain that our nation is due for a period of commercial and financial expansion. This will create a need for men soundly trained in the science of finance. The 'plug hat' type of banker is being replaced by the banker who helps and studies to help and serve business and his clients. It is to promote this study and the development of the right type of financial leaders, I assume, that the Chicago Trust Company has founded these awards."

Output of Electricity In 1922 Breaks Records

The total output of the electric light and power companies of the United States in 1922 broke all records, according to a report of the United States Geological Survey just issued.

The output for the year was 47,676,049,000 kilowatt hours. This was 16.4 per cent greater than the 1921 output and nearly 10 per cent greater than the 1920 output, which is next to 1922 in size.

The average daily production of electricity broke all records again in December, which marked the sixth time that such a record had been broken since May. The average daily production in December was 146,700,000 kilowatt hours and the total output for the month was 4,574,574,000 kilowatt hours. The output in January, 1922, was 3,809,650,000 kilowatt hours.
