

HINMAN IS NEXT EVANSTON HOTEL

Carlson Plans 7-Story Apartment Structure

The northwest corner of Davis street and Hinman avenue, Evanston, is to be the site of an elegant seven-story 600-room apartment hotel to cost probably $3,500,000. The new hotel will be called the Hinman, according to Victor C. Carlson, architect and builder, who has just completed negotiations for a 100 year lease of the site.

The contemplated building will be of Tudor, Old English architecture with the motive carried out in the interior as well as the exterior. In an interview with Mr. Carlson it was stated that the preparation of plans will take nearly a year, so that completion of the new hotel is not expected before sometime in 1925.

Historic Site

The site, which is approximately 200 x 200 feet, possesses singular historic interest not only for Evanstonians but for thousands of Northwestern university graduates as well who will remember it as the first location of their alma mater. In the early fifties the trustees of Northwestern university obtained the site with a large tract of land in that section and in November 1855 opened the Old College building, as it is now known, and which at present stands on the new campus just north of Fisk hall. Old timers say that the first meetings of all the old church societies of Evanston were held in the class rooms of the building on this site.

The lease for the new hotel was closed Saturday between Northwestern university and Victor C. Carlson for a term of 100 years at an aggregate rental of $2,100,000. The lessee is holding possession for a corporation yet to be formed for the purpose of controlling the entire property, subject to the terms of the lease.

Orrington Ready Sept. 1

Mr. Carlson, prominent Evanston builder, who is taking the lease, is the owner of the Library Plaza hotel on Orrington avenue, Evanston, and is now building the Orrington, another new hotel just a block north of the Library Plaza, which will have 300 rooms, arranged singly and in suites with sun rooms. The superstructure of the Orrington is now completed and stone work and masonry will enclose the entire building by May 1. Completion is expected not later than September 1. Advance rental has been rapid, one three-room, one two-room suite and several single rooms being leased last week with the first month's rental paid in advance, indicating the large unfiled demand for exclusive quarters in Evanston.

North Shore Specialist Pens Book on Child Care

Louis W. Sauer, M. A., M. D., well known to north shore residents as the senior attending pediatrician at the Evanston hospital, is the author of a noteworthy book on child care, just received from the publishers, under the title of Nursery Guide for Mothers and Nurses.

Dr. Sauer's book is a work meriting a high position in the field which it covers. Many of those who have examined it believe it to be a volume which will vie for eminence in the place so long occupied with little contention by Holt.

It is pointed out that in spite of epoch-making discoveries and progress in this branch of medicine, the infant death rate still continues high. This little book is intended to aid this situation as far as possible by the guidance of those to whom the care of the infant is entrusted. It gives in a clear, concise form all essential details of care and feeding. Unlike other books, it does not give hazardous formulas and prescriptions. It tells how to care for the infant in health and disease. The subject matter is coherent and systematically arranged, and the illustrations are timely. The north shore may well be proud by this newest addition to the works of men and women who write from this community.
