

With Our Own Poets

THE CRY OF THE SHADOWS

Forth they all go with faces bright
Out from the sunshine into night,
To fight for right and never cease Till to the world they bring true peace.

And we at home, we hide our fear,
In secret shed we many a tear, No blessing they shall ever lack
That we can give, if they come back.

And some come back, but some they lay
In "Flanders Fields" for aye, for aye,
But both went forth to do their mite
To bring to earth sweet peace and right.

We'll raise to them a tribute true
With high mast mounting in the blue,
Flying the flag for which some died
Their names below it side by side!

The lads they smile, with faces glad,
The dead boys' shadows are not sad,
They know their names will stand in stone,

These dear brave shadows we have known.

But time goes by, no tributes stand
To keep them loved in their own land,

The shadowy line of faces bright Fades backward into darkening night.

The living go and take their place
In life's stern, earnest upward race,
Not this, the dear young shadows' lot,
They stand and murmur "They forgot."

FLORIDA AN' OL' FOLKS

Down here in care-free Florida
Where the "Ol' folks" love to come An' lounge around (as comfy like)
Just lookin' in the sun.

Where the palms are softly blowing
In an easy southern breeze,
An' the air's chuck full of fragrance
From the flowers of orange trees.

Where there's no sich thing as strangers,
Everybody welcomes you
With a cheery, kind "good mornin'"
Or a smilin' "Howdy do."

An, the mockin' birds keep singin' Sweetest music all the while,
An' sich games as "pitchin' horseshoes,"
"Roque" an' "bowlin'" all the style.

In this dreamy, soothin' atmosphere,
Beckoning "Ol' folks get together,
Where, lulled by music in the parks,
They forget there's northern weather.

While the wind up north is howlin'
To a blizzard's sleet an' snow,
An the mercury's dropped B'low zero,
Keeps on slippin' down, you know.

Furnace fires actin' vill'ous,
Fer the coal don't seem to burn
If the water pipes are frozen Keepin' warm's your real concern.

Aint it mighty satisfyin'
As we sprawl out on the sand,
That Sunny Florida's next to heaven,
Fer the "Ol' Folks," aint it grand?
Uncle Frank,
Florida, 3/16/23.

Now is the time
to look into it

The season is close at hand when you will be using your car the most. Is your battery ready for the work ahead?

It will pay you to know, not just to guess or hope. Slight repairs now may save the price of a new battery a little later.

Drive around and let us have a critical look and say to you frankly either "O. K." or "This needs to be done." Our service on all makes of batteries is thorough, prompt, reasonable.
