Anyway, It's All About That Masonic Feast

A frolicsome evening was enjoyed Thursday, May 17, upon the occasion of the first annual Fellowship dinner of the Winnetka Masonic lodge.

Augmenting the joys attendant upon the festive board, was a program of entertainment that rivaled in genuine fun anything similar ever attempted in the village, one is informed.

There was, for instance, the program of music by the quartet comprising Messrs. Anderson, Atwood, Mason and Dean; the enthusiastic singing by the entire assemblage; a scintillating address, with readings of poems, by Carl Sandburg, Chicago's own poet; and the impressive entry in Oriental splendor of his Celestial Highness, Lee Hi Low, dignitary of the Chinese Republic, who addressed the solemn concourse.

Mr. Low was escorted to the rostrum with practiced ceremony. He spoke eloquently in his native tongue, his oratory evoking quite noticeable and most sympathetic applause. Mr. Frank Cheeseman, formerly associated with a Chinese banking house, served nicely in the role of interpreter.

Everybody felt quite, one might say, favored, to be counted among such an august assembly.

That is, they felt that way until some rude person rushed into the place demanding angrily, "Where is that Chink?" He (this intruder) would have been subject to immediate annihilation, had he not rushed to the rostrum and clasped the terrified Mr. Low in vigorous but loving embrace.

"Say, fellers," he explained, "this young man is not what you thought, at all, he's a member of the class of '25 at Northwestern university, and not a High Mogul stopping at the Blackstone." The comedy sketch completed, the members settled back comfortably in their chairs while Carl Sandburg held them spellbound for a solid hour with recitations of some of his poems, humorous sallies and profound philosophy.

They're hoping it will be a short year 'gainst the time of the second annual Fellowship dinner.
