Constance Talmadge as Chorus Girl in New Film

Constance Talmadge establishes an entirely new line of laughter in her latest starring success, "Polly of the Follies," the First National attraction which will be at the Community House next Friday. The star takes a new role in the stage-struck country girl who has her own ideas as to what Broadway productions need to spell success.

The story was written especially for Miss Talmadge by John Emerson and Anita Loos and affords excellent opportunities for her to display the particular kind of acting to which she is adapted. The humor is contagious and the plot has strong dramatic values.

Polly Meacham is an ambitious country girl who wants to grace the footlights, but her Uncle Silas has different ideas about woman's place. He breaks up an amateur theatrical show Polly gives in the home town and almost ruins her plans to go on the stage. Despite his opposition, Polly carries out her intentions by winning a place in Flo Ziegfeld's Beauty Chorus.

The conclusion is unique as well as amazing. It differs from the ordinary fate of stage-struck country girls and is said to be one of the most unusual finishes the star has had. Kenneth Harlan is again seen in the role of leading man.
