Analyze Memory Selections

Analyses of selections from the Music Memory contest list to be heard in the second concert program given in connection with next Thursday's Children's afternoon, is as follows:

Overture "The Impresario"....Mozart
Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Austrian Composer of the late 18th Century.

This charming little Overture was written by Mozart in 1786 as the prelude for his one-act comedy called "The Impresario." The story is of two rival primadonnas, who are trying to secure an engagement with the manager of the opera when their singers get jealous of each other.

Dirge "Indian Suite"....MacDowell
Edward MacDowell, American composer of late 19th Century.

The greatest American composer was Edward MacDowell, who was one of the first musicians to realize the importance of the music of the American Indians. This Suite is called "Indian" because all the themes are taken from the songs of different Indian tribes. This Dirge is the fourth number in the Suite.

Symphonic Poem "Phaeton".....Saint-Saens
French composer of late 19th, early 20th centuries.

"Phaeton is a symphonic poem which tells of the old Greek story of the wilful son of Apollo, who was determined to drive his father's sun chariot. Phaeton's experience was a very sad one which Saint-Saens has told us wonderfully.

Deer Dance.....Skilton
Charles Sanford Skilton, modern American composer now living.

Charles Skilton is one of the American composers who realizes the importance of the music of the American Indians. He has used many of their themes. The Deer Dance is based on a real Indian melody.

MC GUIRE AND ORR BUY LARGE MAHONEY TRACT

McGuire and Orr, north shore realtors, negotiated another record transfer this week in taking title to forty acres in Winnetka at the northwest corner of Pine street and Hubbard road, from Miss Annie Mahoney and Miss Mary Mahoney, paying $150,000.

The property is east and north of the Winnetka Playfield golf links and is bounded on the north by Fig street, extended, and on the west by Skokie road. Pine street and Hubbard road are the southern and eastern boundaries, respectively.

This tract, it is announced, has been in the Mahoney family for forty-five years. J. Fred McGuire, who took title, has had several offers for the property for subdivision purposes, but has not yet decided whether to sell or have McGuire and Orr subdivide it.

Meanest Thief in Town; Steals Children's Pet

There are thieves and thieves. Some who are just ordinary thieves, and others who are classified as the meanest of their species. In the latter class must be the person who made away with a six-weeks old Chow dog from the S. W. Karger household at 205 Chestnut street.

Mr. Karger has inserted an announcement in this week's issue of The Talk pleading with the thief to return the pet and receive a reward much in excess of the monetary value of the dog. He wants the pet brought back because the little children in the household are "heartbroken" over their loss.

The Orrington, in Every Detail, Promotes Genuine Home Comfort

"Happier Mode of Living" Most Comprehensive Definition Of Magnificent Apartment Home, the Dream of Victor Carlson, North Shore Master Builder

"The Happier Mode of Living," we meditated after glancing through a beautifully illustrated pamphlet passed on to us by one of the guiding geniuses of The Orrington, Evanston's newest, and unquestionably her finest "home" Apartment hotel, which is to be ready to receive its families on September 1.

"Yes," we concluded, "that seems to define most comprehensively the ideals behind that magnificent structure in which Victor Carlson, master builder of the north shore, sees approaching realization his fondest dreams of a perfect apartment hotel.

An Inspection Tour

Our conclusions were not drawn upon theory and hearsay, for we had just completed a thorough laymen's inspection of The Orrington.

We had "climbed" countless stairways (the elevators have not as yet been installed), and we had rejoiced in the reflected enthusiasm of the artist's voice as he talked of The Orrington, his masterpiece.

There were bare walls, unfinished corridors, the usual confusion of building with some of the 300 workmen at every turn of the journey, but, through it all, somehow we visualized The Orrington of the not distant future.

Starting at the main entrance we saw in their formative stages the palm courts, reception courts, elevator lobby, the spacious Tudor lounge, a really unique feature unknown to most of the finest hotels, apartment or transient; the main dining room, of Italian design, already emitting its suggestion of coziness and homelike appointment; the smaller private dining and banquet halls.

Home Features Emphasized

We saw a room that, the builders plan, shall be a comfortable, up-to-date library; we peered into a cozy nook off the Tudor Lounge that will be a typically home-like writing room. Then the climb to the heights, with brief stop-overs on every floor to glimpse various one, two and three, four and five room apartments.

Every apartment, we are told, is an outside apartment. All have tile floors and wainscot baths, with showers and running ice water. Many have electric kitchenette service cabinets with grill, refrigerator, sink, etc. Two-room apartments have wall beds in the living rooms, supplementing the regular beds in the chambers, giving accommodations for four people. Lighting facilities are generous and every detail is designed to promote an atmosphere of refinement, comfort, and security. And closet room. It is indeed a revelation. Closet spaces in all apartments, regardless of size, are as large as the chambers of the average hotel. It is a feature The Orrington emphasizes along with the other conveniences of real home living.

The outlooks from the various windows are magnificent. Beautiful Evanston, a forest of trees with the broad expanse of the lake to the east, becomes more and more enchanting as we climb floor upon floor.

Birdseye Revelations

But, a genuine revelation is in store for us as we rise above the eighth floor and enter that light ceilinged majestic ballroom with portals leading out upon what will eventually be spacious, breezy roof gardens.

We step through the lofty archways and glance to the southeast. The Wrigley tower and the spires of the Chicago Temple building are quite discernible, the municipal pier is distinct enough, the loop skyscrapers are distant palisades; on the east, a strip of grove that is fashionable Evanston, then, the broad stretches of Lake Michigan; on the north the nearby campus buildings peeping through the heavy foliage of trees and, the biggest surprise of all, the westward curving shore line that permits of a view of the lake to the northwest, the shoreline of Winnetka, Highland Park and Lake Forest. It is northwest, that Winnetka shoreline. The center of that village, we are told, is just four miles west of a point due north of the Grosse Pointe Lighthouse, lying just north of The Orrington.

The Gentlemen's Den

But our climb has not been completed. Our enthusiasm over the view has for the time dissipated thought of all else. We go still higher and into the "tower." Not a small affair, for there will be housed there a sizeable gentlemen's den, with its billiard parlors, card rooms and smoking dens leading out upon breezy promenades.

We are not equal to the task of description. We can only marvel and wonder at it all, as we start the descent which leads us down, down, down, beyond the kitchens on the street level, into the depths of the basement to the bakeries, storerooms and boiler rooms, thence up a flight of stairs and into Orrington avenue.

"The Happier Mode of Living"; and just below that title we read: "The personality and spirit behind The Orrington believes that a conscience for the comfort and happiness of others brings its natural reward without commercialism—and that a sincere and perpetual spirit of service is appreciated far more than a host of idle promises. It is these high ideals that assure the utmost in comfort, service and happiness for those who make The Orrington their home."

BOYS ARE IN CAMP; EVERYTHING IS O. K.

The boys are in camp! Eighteen Winnetka youths arrived safely Tuesday at Lake Hamlin, Ludington, Mich., "Chief" J. W. F. Davies' Community House camp for boys and girls.

Last Monday afternoon the youthful travelers entrained for Milwaukee and proceeded across the lake to Ludington via the steamship Nevada of the Pere Marquette line. They arrived in camp early Tuesday morning.

"All's well, and everybody happy," was the laconic bulletin from camp early this week. The boys found the weather cool and pleasant, and lost no time in getting their camp paraphernalia arranged for the eighteen-day sojourn. They were delighted to find that "Chief" Davies had built another landing for the boats.

Girls of Community house are making preparations for their camping season which begins July 17, after the boys return to the village.

Village Office Force Romps at Lake Zurich

Winnetka moved over to Lake Zurich last Sunday. That is, the official family of the village, the people who take care of affairs at the Village offices enjoyed a delightful outing at the famous summer resort northwest of the north shore.

Daniel Noe, village purchasing agent, is alleged to have caught some fish, but the allegation lacked corroboration among his associates.

Close Library One Week to Permit Renovations

Word is received from the Winnetka Public Library to the effect that the building will be closed for one week beginning Monday, July 9.

During that period the building will be treated to a general renovation, it is announced. Constant use of the building by the reading public makes it necessary to close the doors for one week each year to prevent essential repairs and a general renovation, it is explained.

MUCH GOING ON AT PLAYFIELD

Big Fourth of July Program Promises to Bring Out Large Entry List

BEGIN JULY EVENTS

New Regulations for Saturday-Sunday Play

There is plenty of live news from the Winnetka Playfield association this week, what with the golfing season well underway, the June Class tournament nearing completion, the July tournament in the offing, a membership campaign in progress, and elaborate plans for the Fourth of July.

Expect Big Fourth Entry

As to Fourth of July, a large entry is expected for the events which include Medal play against par with handicaps, and a Ball Sweepstakes. Each entrant in the latter event pays an entry fee of a new golf ball and the same handicaps will prevail in the events as in the Medal play. The list of the 1923 handicaps will be in the hands of the starter on the day of play.

More news for the golfer! The Playfield association is calling attention to the fact that contestants in the monthly class tournaments should finish all matches during the month designated and should be sure to deliver their match cards to the starter so that results may be posted on the bulletin board. These cards should bear the telephone number of the successful contestants. Failure to do this seriously interferes with the operation of these monthly events.

Prepare July Tournament

There are only a limited number of players who are qualified for the July Class tournament, the association officials state. These have been divided into three classes of eight each and first round will be held on July 7 and 8. Necessary information will be posted on the bulletin board with each player's handicap.

A campaign is in progress to increase the membership of the Playfield association, it is announced. Every golf player and resident is urged to support this recreation enterprise by paying annual dues of one dollar. Payments may be made with Elmer J. Baker, Jr., secretary, or to the starter at the course.

An important notice is contained in the following:

"Attention is called to the fact that the time from 2 P. M. to 2:30 P. M. on Saturday afternoons and from 8:30 to 9 A. M. on Sunday morning will be held open for tournament matches and will not be open for general advance registration. Contestants are asked to arrange their matches for these periods of time.

Township Taxing Bodies Hold Session Next Week

Representatives of the various taxing bodies of New Trier Township will meet at the Winnetka Village hall Monday evening, July 2, to consider the matter of securing representation of the taxing bodies before the Board of Review in connection with the application for change in the assessed valuation.

The Quadrennial revaluation is now in progress in the township under the direction of George H. Harbaugh, township assessor.

Dinner and Dance at Skokie Club July 4th

An extra dinner and dance are arranged for July Fourth at the Skokie Country club, it was announced this week. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock and dancing will begin at 9 o'clock on the Terrace, weather permitting.

The club also announced that there will be dances every Saturday evening until further notice.

Place 80-Foot Flagpole in Hubbard Woods Park

Village workmen were busy this week erecting the new 80-foot flagpole in the Hubbard Woods station park provided by the Winnetka Park district.

On Fourth of July the flagpole will be formally dedicated in connection with the dedication of the new park. Louis B. Kuppenheimer of Hubbard Woods will preside at the flag raising ceremonies.
