

Fondest Boyhood Dreams Become Reality For Adventure Islanders

"Dream Girl" Crew Encounters Thrills Aplenty on Long Lakes Cruise and Extended Encampment

The final contingent of Adventure Island camp boys came into Wilmette harbor one morning late last week aboard the cruiser Dream Girl. In spite of the brisk nor'easter which had been blowing all night the run from Sturgeon Bay canal was made in a little better than twenty-four hours.

The Dream Girl, in charge of her skipper, Charles A. Kinney, first mate Dave DeLay, with Carl and Paul Holinger as second mate and

Cruiser "DREAM GIRL" on which fifteen north shore boys make the trip to Adventure Island camp each summer. The "DREAM GIRL" has cruised more than 20,000 miles on Lake Michigan, Lake Huron, Lake Superior, North Channel, Georgian Bay and numerous rivers and smaller bodies of water. In all of these cruises she has been manned by north shore boys. The "DREAM GIRL" is owned by Charles A. Kinney of Winnetka.

boat was helpless and drifting rapidly back into the lake, coast guard. An hour later when the Dream Girl was securely docked in Ellison Bay and the boys were preparing their supper a power life boat manned by six husky coast guards in sou'westers ran up to inquire if anyone had seen a cruiser drifting out into the lake. Explanations followed. Some of the boys regretted that a rescue had not been necessary. The six coast guards remained only long enough to make a report.

Some of the most exciting experiences of the summer were had at camp. One especially was the fighting a forest fire which continued for several days. During three nights the tent groups took turns patrolling the burned areas. So keen did the boys become in detecting incipient blazes that the last night two of them rushed up to the "skipper's" tent with a bucket of water and spades only to find the blaze they thought they had seen came from an ordinary camp lantern.

A great deal of construction work was done by the boys this summer, the biggest single undertaking being the "Tooner-ville Trolley," a tramway running down the bluff from the mess hall to the water, a distance of some 300 feet. The tramway also supports the water system installed by the boys this summer. Next summer a combination boat and car will operate over the tram so that supplies may be loaded into the boat, floated up to the tracks and run on wheels directly up to the mess hall.

Erect "Tech Tent"

An innovation this year was the establishment by two of the councilors, David DeLay and Charles Rummeler, of the "technical tent." Both young men are students in the naval architecture course at the University of Michigan, and keenly interested in everything pertaining to engineering. The "tech" tent soon became the center of interest to most of the boys. In this and the shop tent plans were drawn up and the instruments made with which the boys later surveyed the island, an undertaking which gave many of the boys their first introduction to geometry.

Fired Moonshiners' Den

The most unusual discovery of the year was made while a number of the boys with Mr. Kinney were attempting to capture a spotted fawn. The chase led into one of the thickest parts of the woods where one of the boys stumbled over a fallen pine and directly into the entrance of a cave, the opening of which was so cleverly concealed that only by accident could it have been discovered. Upon investigation it proved to be a moonshiner's den, evidently having been deserted since the old logging days when a saw mill and many lumber camps were located on the island. The copper still, mash boilers, barrels, jugs, bottles,—all of the paraphernalia of a small distillery were still intact. What became of the moonshiners and why they should have deserted their equipment will probably always remain a mystery. Next summer the older boys plan to use the den for the initiation ceremonies of the new boys.

J. A. Humphreys, former principal of Skokie school, spent part of the summer at camp where he wrote, in collaboration with Alfred Frankenstein, one of the camp boys, "Virtue Triumphant," a farce-comedy based on local characters from Fish Creek and the Chambers Island girls' camp, where the play was later produced. The play which was put on under the direction of Mr. Humphreys, made a glorious hit. "Peanuts" Fairman as the mayor of Sturgeon Bay, shooting craps with Handsome Hermann "Sheik" Hilton, the Hero, and Dave DeLay and John Jewell as the fore and aft ends of Spark Plug the horse, touched the high spots in the acting, with Billy Hughes, as Rushing "Mollie" Radford, and Gordon Reed as the 216 pound heroine, close seconds.

Thirty Boys in Camp

Thirty north shore boys were at camp this summer. Aside from a few minor cuts and bruises and "tummy" aches not a single boy was ill. This season marks the ninth of cruising and the third of organized camp, with never a serious accident or a boy requiring the attendance of a physician. The north shore boys who attended camp this summer, sixteen of whom made the cruise from Winnetka to camp on the Dream Girl are:

Fred "Peanuts" Fairman, Charles Eberhart, Billy Hughes, Jimmy Fleming, Jamie and Jack Odell, Charles Rummeler, John Jewell, Freddie Tellander, Gardner Matteson, Clarence Henderson, Alfred Alschuler, Gordon Reed, Kermit Lovgren, Kenneth Lovgren, David DeLay, Jimmy Kerr, Ariel Jewell, Robert Lakemacher, Bill Koch, John Hilton, Alfred Frankenstein, Landis Blair, Carl and Paul Holinger, dePeyster Parr, Ewing and Ralph Johansen. Webster Jackson, Eames Marble and Jack Hunter were among those who made the cruise to camp and spent a short time on the island. A large number of north shore people drove up to visit the boys during the summer. All in all in spite of the backward weather the season was the most successful in every way since the camp was established.
