

SALVATION ARMY IN DRIVE SOON

Leo M. Dean Is President of Local Committee

At a meeting of the Wilmette Advisory committee of the Salvation Army held last Thursday evening, the local committee was reorganized and plans effected to conduct the annual fund campaign here during the week of October 15 to 22.

In commenting on the Wilmette program for the coming season, G. M. Richmond, field representative of the Salvation Army, says:

"Perhaps there is no more self-sacrificing people on the earth than the officers of the Salvation Army. The reward of the Army lassies or laddies is not an earthly one, except in the consciousness of doing something for others. While they believe in the next world, they certainly believe, also, in making this one better and more livable for everybody. "Wherever there is human misery and distress, they are there to alleviate it. They believe that, while both men and women may be down, they are never out. None can excel them in the work of rehabilitating wrecked lives and changing human derelicts into normal human beings who become helpers of theirs as soon as they are rescued.

"But this is not all they do. There is never a great calamity but they are there. In the Pueblo disaster they were the first to rush two car-loads of food from Denver. Last year they placed 70,000 persons in positions free of cost.

"They are now in the field of prevention as well as rescue and their young women's boarding homes are such agencies. These homes are delightfully cheerful, affording the best surroundings with prices so reasonable that it seems almost incredible. They are safe and comfortable retreats. They carry on sixteen major activities and last year administered the Chicago budget at the small cost of 5.1 per cent.

"The Salvation Army has no great organized mass in its own membership aside from its consecrated officers. Its members are all workers. Their personnel is not composed of prosperous business men and those who have retired in opulence, hence they rely upon the support of the public to aid them in carrying on their work, or rather the people's work. Protestant, Catholic and Jew are all alike to them when it comes to service. There is no distinction.

"The Salvation Army now handles its finances through the annual appeal, keeping their officers so far as possible at the job of service for which they are trained. The state-wide appeal of the Salvation Army this year in Illinois is from October 15 to 23.

"The local Salvation Army committee at Wilmette met and reorganized last Thursday and voted to take up the work and present the appeal for funds in common with other communities.

"The local board for this year is as follows:

Leo M. Dean, president; Henry Fowler, vice president; Margaret E. Pickard, secretary; Dan G. Stiles, treasurer. The other members are: Paul A. Hoffman, Mrs. C. A. Wanner, Maj. Malcolm McKerchar, Charles F. Brandt, Mrs. William Levett and Mrs. Charles R. Pickard."

BLIND STUDENT BACK AT STUDY

Carl Bostrom Takes Heavy Course at N. U.

Carl Bostrom, the remarkable blind student at the college of liberal arts of Northwestern university, has returned to the Evanston campus and will take more work than the average university student who has perfect vision. Besides his regular class-work, Carl is planning to ask Prof. Robert H. Gault, head of the psychology department of Northwestern university, to experiment with him during the first semester as to his special ability to distinguish colors either by the sense of feeling or smell. Prof. Gault conducted a series of interesting experiments last year along this line and young Bostrom is anxious to reach some definite conclusions.

"If I can learn more of the sense of touch and smell and their related values to the blind human being, I feel that I shall be better equipped to meet life's problems after I leave Northwestern university," explained the sightless sophomore.

Has Heavy Course

Carl this year has engaged to take English, French, geology, psychology, public speaking, European history and a special course in physical training.

"It is a big load but I'm sure I can carry it with the help of my mother," young Bostrom declared confidently. His mother, who helped Carl to register and select his studies, said she had agreed to be her son's eyes not only this year but throughout his college course. "My mother is loath to let me take up journalism," continued the lad while his mother nodded a strenuous affirmation, "but I'm going in for it anyway, I'm sure I can get around all right."

Mrs. Bostrom explained that Carl could hardly be a successful reporter in a large city and she was doubtful, too, as to his being able to become an editorial writer.

"Editorial writers on large newspapers must do so much reading," she commented, "and I fear I couldn't do all that for Carl after he gets away from home."

However, Carl stuck to it that he was going to try it and both mother and son left University hall, laughing and chatting over his future problems and their possibilities. Last year Carl made better marks than he had supposed. He received A in English and French (the highest mark.) B in geology and C in public speaking.

RELATIONS DAY GOLF TOURNEY BIG SUCCESS

The Eleventh Club Relations Day at the Exmoor Country Club of The Chicago District Golf association was held Wednesday, September 26.

The tournament was for the Officers and Directors of Member clubs and an interesting and varied program made the affair one of the outstanding events of the year.

The contests for the day were divided into four events, as follows: Event A, for presidents of Member clubs; Event B, for vice-presidents, secretaries and treasurers; Event C, for directors; Event D, for former officers of the association. The morning play started at 8 o'clock and continued until luncheon, which was served from 11:30 until 2 o'clock. Afternoon play began at 1 o'clock and dinner was served at 7:15 in the evening. All the play was in foursomes and no two players from the same club played in the same foursome unless so directed by the official starter. There were prizes for each event and also general prizes. The club having the four lowest gross scores was presented with the Chicago District Golf association Trophy by the Chicago Golf club. After the distribution of prizes in the evening, a very pleasing entertainment was enjoyed by all those present.
