

WINNETKANS AT PLAY CONGRESS

Leaders Attend Great Recreation Meeting

Winnetka is represented by Harry P. Clarke, Playground director; Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, of the National Parent-Teacher association; and Mrs. Eloise W. Wortley, assistant to the director of Community House, at the tenth annual Recreation Congress in session this week at Springfield, Ill.

In a special message to the Winnetka Talk, Mrs. Wortley states that the meeting is not only a huge success in point of attendance, but also in the expressed enthusiasm of all the delegates present. Nearly a thousand civic leaders from all parts of the country interested in youth and the upbuilding of the nation are gathered here to discuss problems of recreational and community activities.

A strong plea for the development of community drama and community music is being made, she says, not only as a medium of self-expression but as a means through which America will finally express its finest ideals. The conference which is being held under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, started Monday, October 8, and concludes Friday, October 12. The session is being attended by a number of very prominent persons including such men as Lorado Taft, Austin E. Griffiths, Judge of Superior Court, State of Washington, and many others.

All three of the representatives from Winnetka are taking an active part in the program of the week and their idea in regard to the development of the playground activities are being heartily endorsed by all those present.
