TOM MEIGHAN IS STAR IN COMMUNITY FILM

Is there any man in the world who is woman-proof? Yes! cry a chorus of bachelors. No! sigh those who have "fallen." Everyone thought Tom Rockwood was-re was all right, but when he met the right girl-well, he certainly slipped. You see, Tom was to receive a large sum of money, under the terms of his uncle's will, if he would marry by a certain time, otherwise it would go to an Old Peope's Home. Tom's relatives worr.ed terr.bly-not because they hated to see the Home benefit by the money, but because of a sort of loyalty which made them desire that it come into the family. In spite of this Tom continued a bachelor. "Give him time" some people said, "he's no shiek," but time wasn't what he needed-at least not after he found the right girl.

"Woman Proof," starring Thomas Meighan, as Tom Rockwood, will be the feature picture next Tuesday at Comespecially for him by George Ade, the well known American humorist.

Second Graders Engage in Genuine Stagecraft

If you had been at North Shore Country Day school the other day you would have observed the second grade painting scenery with a will-trees, a red brick oven, and a gingerbread house would have made you guess that "Hansel and Gretel" was in the offing. If you came to assembly on Tuesday morning you would have seen the play itself given for the whole school.

"Left foot here, right foot there," sang Hansel and Gretel in their rustic cottage, showing each other the dance. Mother, also a second grader, sent them after berries, and father, on returning, brought rumors of an old witch in the forest. The second scene took you to the woods where stood the painted trees, the oven, the witch's hut, and children Robert Lewis Stevenson's famous turned into trees and stones by the old story, "Treasure Island," was given by witch. Over the sleeping Hansel and Pupils Show Knowledge the boys of the eighth grade at Skokie Gretel a little fairy wove a charm, school last night, and with a slightly while eighth grade girls behind the scenes sang a soft lullaby. The two children awakened and were soon discovered by the old witch whose gingerbread house they were eating. You know how it goes after that until the witch is pushed into her own oven and will be played by David Schmid, while he children are found by their thank-

The charm of the play reposed in the happiness the second grade had in giving it. Tto them it was not just "acting," but a real "let's pretend" story Florence Webster is the only girl in that they had all played, even to having made a puppet show for the lower school to see and to making the scenery for this performance before the entire school. The play grew out of their art and their reading group projects.

SKOKIE CAGE SEASON ENDS

Final Game Is Played from School Assembly

This week saw the end of the basket ball season at Skokie school, and the four leagues ended up with only two changes in the standings of the teams. The Tigers, Makataques, Skokie B team, and the Panthers, were victorious in their respective leagues, and they all hold their places from last week.

In the Girls' Heavyweight league the "Lightning" pushed the "Blue Eagles" into third place for the runner-up position, while in the Boys' Class A league, the "Grizzles" pushed from the bottom to second place, leaving the "Deerfoot and "Bulldogs" tied for the last position.

of Ancient Greek Life

The fourth grade children at the North Shore Country Day school entertained their mothers on Wednesday in their grade room.

In this grade the reading, art, history, etc., center chiefly around the study of Greek life, therefore the children, dressed in the Greek costumes of one of their former plays, showed their parents the shields they had made and designed, together with some of the things concerning Greek life that especially interested them. They further entertained the parents with a little play, and served refreshments. Mrs. John L. Senior, of 379 Ridge avenue, Winnetka, is chairman of the fourth grade parents group.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Markley, 777 Burr avenue, are in Miami, Florida. They expect to return to Winnetka next week.

Mrs. Carroll Ridgway of Bryant avenue, is in Tryon, North Carolina.
