

ILLINOIS FANS ORDER TICKETS

Unlimited Number May Be Purchased

Illinois football fans everywhere have begun to mail in their orders for tickets. Even though ticket information and application blanks have been going into the mail for more than a week, the orders are flooding into the office. Then, too, many people are writing the football ticket office for blanks and instructions.

Many people seem to think that the number of tickets that anyone may order is limited. This is not the case. Orders are not limited and will be filled with the best seats available at the time they are received. Many fans are also taking the opportunity of ordering their seats for the entire season. The lifting of the ban on the number of seats to be ordered has been a boon to the organization of private parties. Several orders for 50 tickets have been received.

Illini clubs all over the state are writing in for blocks of tickets so that they may sit together at the Illinois-Michigan game, October 18. The Kiwanis club of Danville is going to play host to the high school football team at the Illinois-Iowa game, November 1. These are just a few of the many private parties being organized.

In ordering tickets a self-addressed stamped envelope for each game for which tickets are ordered should be enclosed with the order. By attaching a 10 cent stamp to the envelope the ticket may be registered. Chicago football tickets will not be mailed until November 3 because of University of Chicago football ticket restrictions. Before the stadium was built there was always a mad scramble for tickets but now with the stadium nearing completion and with a capacity of more than 63,000, it looks as though there would be tickets even to the last day. But you can never tell—the early birds will be sure of seats, though.

The first batch of the 150,000 football tickets which will be used this fall have just come off the press. These are for all of the home games, of course.
