THREE DECADES AGO, AND NOW

Incandescent electric lights were first used in a theatre at the Opera-Comique, London, England, in 1881. The performance was Gilbert and Sullivan's "Lolanthe." Advertising the innovation, the manager announced gas lights were kept installed for use if the "experiment" should fail.

Braun Brothers to Open
Tire Shop in Wilmette

Braun brothers, well known tire merchants, will open shop number 3, Monday, September 15, at 621 Main street, Wilmette, with a complete line of General and Leto tires.

The store was formerly occupied by the Skokie tire company which recently moved from that location. Braun brothers rented the store and have remodeled and redecorated the interior. Here they promise the same efficient service to their customers and patrons as is given in the other two shops operated by the Brauns, one at Ridge and Wilmette avenues, and the other on Oak street, Winnetka.

And now a new Nokol
for hot water service

The new 4-inch Nokol converts any water heater having a storage tank into an automatic hot water system. It is automatically operated by an aquastat in the water tank, set at two predetermined degrees at which you wish the water temperature kept—say 150° and 160°. When you draw water from the tank the temperature falls below 150° and Nokol begins operating. When 160 degrees is again reached, Nokol automatically stops. Because of the cheapness of oil as fuel, Nokol installed in your present gas-fired water heater will result in a saving in fuel costs of between 50 and 75%. Nokol provides automatic heating service for any type of building from the 5-room bungalow to the 100-room apartment.
