

Declares Little Accessories Necessary to Complete Home

Give Touch of Beauty and Usefulness Essential to Liveable Room

By ELSIE WEST

"With accessories to match" are words usually applied to the bride as she is described in a stunning gown of "what-you-will" with said accessories. They help make up her costume and play an important part in its attractiveness. But there are other things beside costumes that need accessories and a living room that is supplied with these convenient and decorative touches adds a great deal to its attractiveness as well as its comfort. For what would a living room be that was furnished only with chairs and a davenport? A barn-like place to say the least. It needs the smaller things to fill in the empty spaces, to act as contrasts to the more massive but highly ornamental table is the second, then, that finds its way into the living room.

Of course we must not forget the end table without which the davenport is not complete. It also has a place at the side of the big easy chair. This table may be bought with the idea of decoration first and have no other use than as a table—then a lamp or a pair of bookends may furnish its adornment. But if one wishes to make it a more utilitarian proposition and yet keep it in the realm of the beautiful, these end tables may be selected for a multitude of purposes.

"The," Not "My," Right in "Old Kentucky Home"

"Which shall it be? Which shall it be? 'My' or 'the' 'my' or 'the'?" Isn't that silly? We agree with you, and yet it was the basis of a discussion that was carried on by several historical societies. The question was, did Stephen G. Foster write, in 1858, for the first line of his famous song "The sun shines bright on my old Kentucky home," or was it: "The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky home"? A bronze tablet to be given Bardstown, Ky., where the song was written, designates the first line as "My old Kentucky home."

The first edition of the song in the Library of Congress at Washington was entered for copyright by Firth, Pond & Hall of New York. This first copy is in the form of plate proofs, because at that time these proofs were made before the title of the song was engraved, and they show that the first line reads "The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky home".....so that's that.

pieces. A tilt top table here and a magazine rack there are the very things to do this. Every living room really needs about four or five tables. One table of medium size to take the place of the table which no longer holds the place of honor in the center of the room, is, of course, necessary as a reading table.

Gateleg Table Always Good

A gateleg table is always in good taste for this, but if you prefer one of another shape with an unbroken top it may be used. It is a matter to be settled by the individual's ideas. Gateleg tables may be obtained in a variety of different styles, sizes and finishes, from the dull finish walnut or mahogany one to those that are smaller and lacquered in black and made fanciful by the Chinese designs in gold upon them.

At least one piece of lacquered furniture is good in nearly every living room. Recently I saw an attractive little table with three shelves done in an orange-red lacquer. The bottom shelf was probably not more than eight inches wide, and the top one does not take up much room and certainly adds a bit of brightness to the spot it adorns and at the same time is very useful. It needs no decoration, but may be used to hold the ash tray, the evening paper or the afternoon tea cup. Along this same line was a green lacquered coffee table, the top of which seemed to be made of an old Japanese tray. A small, occasional,

HOME HAS INSPIRED COMPOSERS OF MUSIC

Home and the thoughts that home inspires in the hearts of all people are now and always have been a dominant theme in prose, verse and music. The range is from the sentimental popular songs of the present day to the very best poetry and music as represented by the operas. You may hear home eulogized by the children in the streets singing the hackneyed "Back Home Again Blues" and on the opera stage by the beautiful Mignon, in Ambrose Thomas' well-loved "Knowest Thou the Land," who longs for the country of her home—from which she was stolen as a child.

Composers of all nationalities have chosen the subject of home for a variety of wonderful arias. Verdi has "Aria," the exiled princess in the opera of the same name, sing a despairing but beautiful song of Ethiopia in "O Patria Mia" (My Native Land). In the opera "William Tell," Arnold sings "O Blessed Abode," an appealing song of farewell to the home of his youth. "Home to Our Mountains," from "Il Trovatore" is dear to hearts because it expresses the love of every man and woman for home, and all that the word means. For "Home" is universal, and we know when Geront in "Traviata," sings "Thy Home in a Fair Province," refers not only to his home in France, but also to ours wherever it may be—for any place is a "fair province" when it is a real home.

Lesson in Picture Display Brought to Us from Japan

We could learn from the Japanese in regard to this point. They display only one picture at a time, choosing the subject that is appropriate to the season of the year, or some special occasion; and they keep it in its place for only a short time.

If we were to have enough pictures (and it would not take many) to change at intervals those that hang on our walls, we should see them to far better advantage and appreciate them the more. The decorative effect of the home would thus be enlivened and improved, with new color in the old spot.

What Kitchen Aid Does for You

- Mixes dough for bread, cakes, pie, ginger-bread, doughnuts, rolls, etc.
- Mashes potatoes—two or two dozen, to a wondrous fluffiness.
- Makes mayonnaise (drops the oil gradually), one cup, or as many as you like.
- Beats eggs and icings; batter for pancakes, waffles, etc.
- Whips cream or evaporated milk, meringues, icings, etc.
- Creeps various other ingredients.
- Beats and creams fudge, fondants, etc.
- With attachment, it freezes ice creams, sherbets, mousses, or any frozen dessert.
- It grinds coffee, chips ice, chops meat, nuts, raisins, etc.
- It strains soups, purees, through a fine sieve.
- Strains apple sauce. It is not necessary to pare or core the apples. This adds immeasurably to the flavor.
- It slices potatoes (to any desired thickness).
- Cuts shortening in pastry.
- And it retains the temperature (either hot or cold) of whatever product it is mixing.

All of this it does—and more!

Send Coupon Today To See Kitchen Aid You'll Not Be Pestered

If you will fill out and mail either coupon at the bottom of this advertisement, you will not be pestered or annoyed by persistent salesmen.

The men representing Kitchen-Aid on the North Shore are not salesmen in the true sense of the word.

In place of regular salesmen, Kitchen-Aid is presented for your consideration in your kitchen by demonstrators or service men.

Those who now own Kitchen-Aid bought them. Kitchen-Aid was not sold to them.

There is positively no obligation on your part to buy if you send in the coupon requesting a demonstration.

We would welcome the opportunity to show Kitchen-Aid in every home on the North Shore, for the machine must be seen in operation before its unusual, practical value can be realized.

A demonstrator will put this almost magical electrical machine in your kitchen and show you how much it does in a new and better way—what it is—how it does—how it saves time and labor—how you can prepare an elaborate dinner without becoming too tired to enjoy it.

After you have seen the machine and you decide that you do not care to purchase, all you need to do is tell our demonstrator so. He will take the machine away, after thanking you for the opportunity to show it to you.

If you say "I do not care to buy now, but will purchase one next month," you will not see a Kitchen-Aid man until the date you set for another interview.

Our experience teaches us that Kitchen-Aid makes friends wherever shown. If a man or woman who sees Kitchen-Aid demonstrated does not buy, he or she has only words of endorsement and approval for it and gives favorable answers whenever asked about our machine and what it will do.

It is not unusual to receive orders for Kitchen-Aid, saying something like this: "I saw your machine a year ago and made up my mind then that I wanted to own a Kitchen-Aid."

So don't hesitate if you want to see Kitchen-Aid in your own home. You will not be urged to buy. Our demonstrators are cheerful and courteous. We are proud of them. We promise you they will not annoy you or pester you or endeavor to "make a sale." If you buy a Kitchen-Aid, you will buy it because you want it, not because anybody urged you.

A postal card or the coupon below will bring Kitchen-Aid to your home at a time convenient to you. We mean it when we say that a demonstration costs you nothing, nor places you under any obligation. Send the coupon today.
