

Meet Mr. Inx

He's a new citizen and, with that, the latest acquisition to the staff of Lloyd Hollister, Inc. You'll meet him at every turn and his beaming countenance is destined to become familiar to every man, woman and child in our village.

His name? Oh yes, Mister Inx. Permit us to introduce Mister Inx. That's his monicker, and he comes to us as Generalissimo of Hollister, Inc. All-round consulting engineer in the editorial, advertising, circulation, job printing and every other department of the concern.

Mister Inx may be regarded as a sort of composite of what Lloyd Hollister, Inc., represents in the community. He'll be summoned into consultation whenever a kick is registered, a new idea promulgated, a community project enlisting the aid and active support of WINNETKA TALK and its various departments.

He'll be the man who makes the decisions, the personage ever ready to meet and greet the public. Folks, meet Mister Inx. Look for him! He'll be an up-and-up personality in our community.

Discover Fraud Behind Selling for "Disabled"

The source of house-to-house solicitation for "disabled veterans," a practice condemned by Winnetka Post of the American Legion through the columns of WINNETKA TALK several months ago, was discovered in Chicago this week when uniformed solicitors admitted they are in the employ of a man who supplied their wares and later "split them on a 50-50 basis." In other words, the "disabled veterans" in this instance, were a myth and the proceeds from the sales were amassing a comfortable fortune for an able-bodied schemer.

Winnetka Post has repeatedly warned local householders against patronizing these house-to-house solicitors who usually appear in army garb and enter a plea for aid for disabled men. It now appears that the Chicago police have checked at least one source of this common fraud.

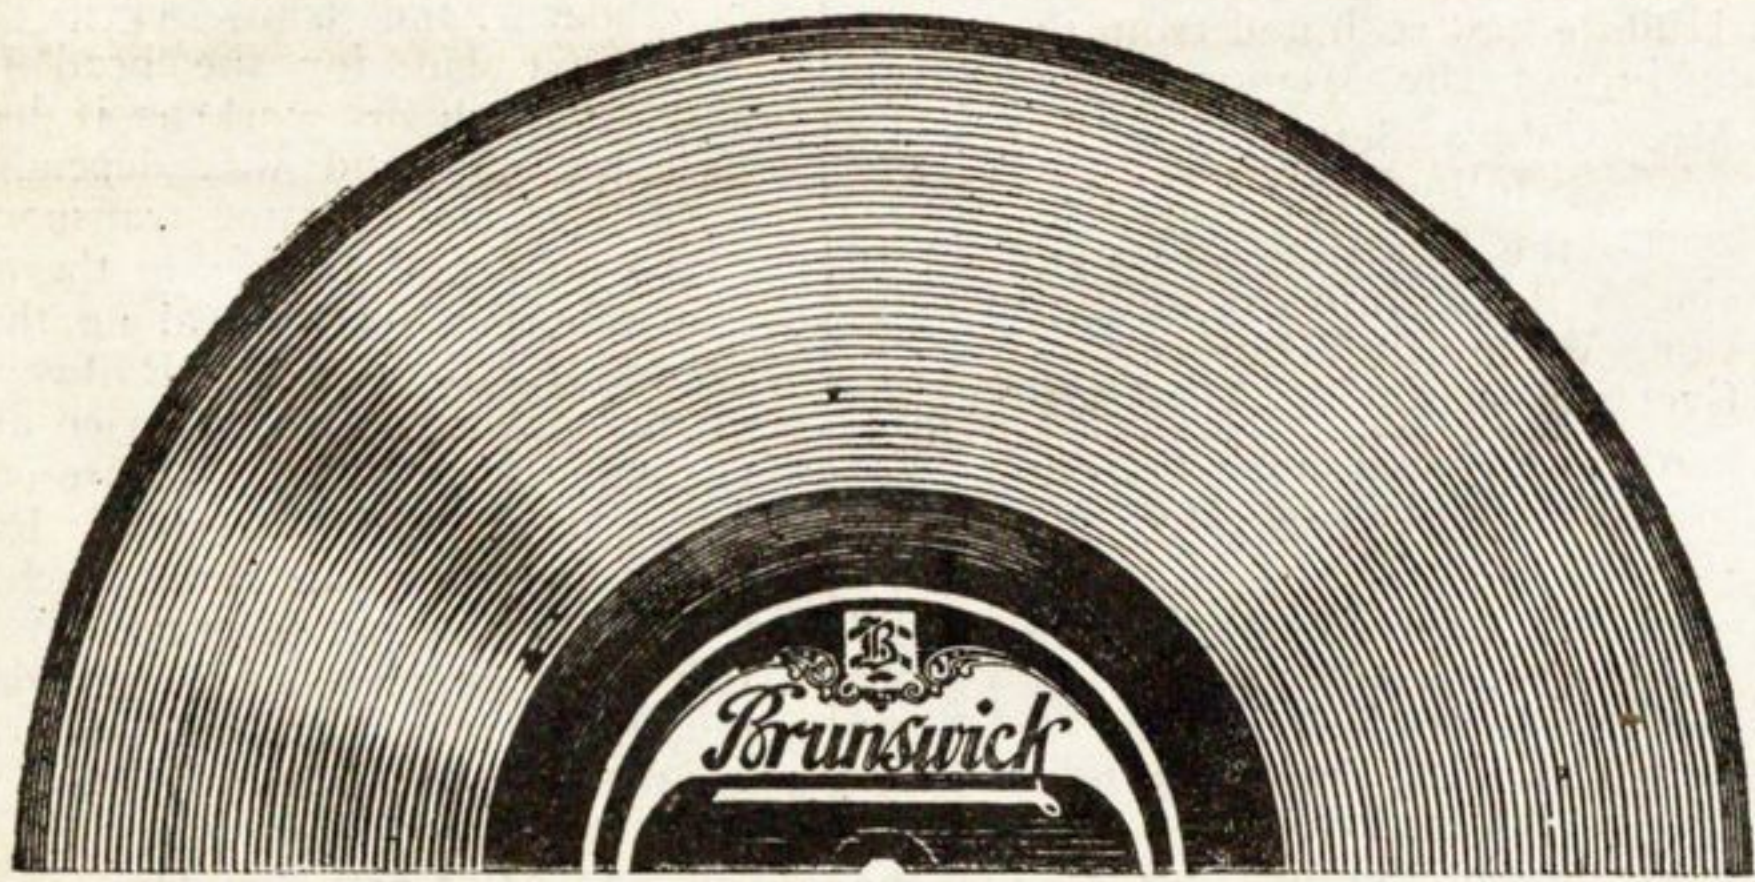

It is emphasized that aid for disabled war veterans comes through the channels of the American Legion and other recognized agencies, so that handling solicitation is entirely unnecessary. Needy disabled men or their families may secure immediate relief by applying to the American Legion, Red Cross, or other legitimate organizations.

Legion to Have State Commander at Dinner

Winnetka Post, No. 10, of the American Legion, is planning a dinner for the evening of Monday, January 26, at Community House at which State Commander Howard P. Savage will be the guest of honor and principal speaker. Other State Department officials attending the dinner will be Fred McGuire, seventh district committee man, and Ferry Watkins, judge advocate.

The program will be augmented by the appearance in person of a group of prominent Chicago Radio artists.

should be laid upon the idea of starting NOW. Everybody with sense enough to earn any money at all is sold on the idea of saving part of it as old age insurance; but all too many keep putting it off. Many of them wait until it is too late.

Don't make this mistake. Start an account here now with a dollar or so, and then keep adding to it. That's the only safe way to do it!
