

Mid-winter Dinner-Dance Is Given by Riding Club

ON Wednesday evening, January 28, the Indian Hill Riding club held its first annual mid-winter dinner and dance at the Indian Hill club, seventy-five members and their guests were present for dinner and afterwards heard Major General George Harries, a veteran cavalryman of Indian campaigns and the Spanish-American and World wars, spin yarns of the service.

In bidding the guests welcome, Colton Daughaday, the president of the club, told of the growth of the club from its inception, one year and ten months ago, to a membership now numbering 86. A well equipped stable has been built, and extensive bridal paths maintained or built.

Mrs. Donald T. McPherson spoke entertainingly on the club from the women's view point. Godfrey H. Atkin was toastmaster.

A novel feature of the evening was a motion picture representation of the thoroughbred in action in races, steeplechases, and over high jumps.

Captain Dick van Ingen of Fort Sheridan, who rode his celebrated "Gray Parson" at the military exhibition and horse show given in Winnetka last fall by the riding club, was present at the dinner and gave the members a few pointers on schooling and riding jumpers.

One reel of the motion pictures, made at Rochester, N. Y., showed Captain van Ingen riding Gray Parson over bars six feet six inches high, and his description of events from the audience was interesting.

Pictures of General Pershing leading his cavalry into Mexico, riding through the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, and in New York at the head of his victorious troops returning from overseas, ended this phase of the evening's program.
