

Prepare Children's Horse Show

Winnetka and other north shore children will have an opportunity to demonstrate their prowess as equestrians at the children's horse show of the Indian Hill Riding club, which will be held Saturday, September 19, according to announcement issued this week by officials of the club.

"This is the third annual show," says a notice from the club, "and is a great event among the children of the north shore. Already the youngsters are hard at work practicing for the various children's riding classes. All north shore children are welcome to enter and many prizes will be distributed. Entry blanks for the various classes may be obtained from Godfrey H. Atkin, chairman, Golf Lane, Winnetka."

This event has become increasingly popular every year, and drew large numbers of children as well as grown-ups last year. Beautiful animals are on exhibit at this show and excellent horsemanship is displayed by the youthful riders.

Banking for the People

Who Are the "Interests" Behind Banks?

THE "interests" which dominate your bank are the best interests of all the people in the community.

The depositors are the community—the farmer, the merchant, the manufacturer, the professional man, the humble worker.

They are the first considered in formulating the bank's policies.

Some may tell you "big business" controls banks; others may say "the money barons"—mystical persons whom it is doubtful if anyone in the community ever saw.

Other misinformed persons will intimate broadly that "Wall Street" reaches its tentacles into every bank in the nation; that it controls community banks and draws the wealth of the nation from them.

You may even hear, occasionally, that "they say" the wealthy people of your community dominate the local banks with an eye single to their own profits.

They are all wrong.

No bank could endure if it were operated for special interests while receiving its support from the community at large.

In such a case the community would not support it.

If Wall Street owns stock in a few of the nation's banks, the number is comparatively small; and the amount of stock held is so negligible that the situation need not be seriously considered.

Bank stock is, for the greater part, owned locally.

Its owners have the same freedom in its purchase or sale as they do in the stock of other corporations.

Directors who control the bank's destinies and shape its policies are chosen by vote of stockholders.

Bank management in all its actions considers first the well-being and the safety of depositors.

As a depositor's efforts are crowned with success, his deposits are larger, his borrowing power improved; he makes an ideal customer for his bank.

Multiply the average depositor by the whole number. Then, for good measure, add the whole community. There you have the "interests" behind your bank.
